

Lebanon Fearful Of War

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Lebanon's defense minister said today his government plans a military draft and expressed fears that Israel will spark a third world war.

Defense Minister Hussein Ouweini disclosed at a news conference plans for conscription. He appealed to all nations to join in trying to head off a global conflict.

Commenting on Israel's commando raid on Beirut airport last Saturday, Ouweini said that if Lebanon is attacked again, it will fight with every means at its disposal, even sticks.

"The attack on Beirut has strengthened our resistance and stiffened our determination to fight on," he said.

Ouweini denied reports in Beirut newspapers that the government had decided to permit a visit by the Soviet Mediterranean fleet.

"There has been absolutely no request either by the U.S. 6th Fleet or by the Soviet fleet to visit Lebanon and the question has not been discussed," he said.

The reports said the government told the Soviet Union that Russian ships could visit Beirut if Moscow asked. The Soviet fleet, believed to total about 50 ships in the Mediterranean, has never visited Lebanon.

The right-wing newspapers Al Nahar and Al Jarida said Premier Abdulla Yafi expressed the view that U.S. Navy ships would be unwelcome because of Washington's recent decision to sell 50 Phantom jets to Israel. This would be a reversal of Lebanon's traditional pro-Western policy.

In Cairo, the authoritative newspaper Al Ahran said President Gamal Abdel Nasser has endorsed Jordanian King Hussein's call for an Arab summit meeting.

The paper said Nasser sent Hussein a message signifying agreement.

Arab League sources said, however, that only 6 of the 15 Arab states have so far expressed any enthusiasm for such a meeting. They are Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon, Sudan, Kuwait and Yemen.

Israeli anger at the world's concern for Lebanon increased. Foreign Minister Abba Eban assailed the U.N. Security Council

County Court Sets Deadline For a Reply

A decision on the sale of the property occupied by the Yellow Cab Co., just across Lamine from the Pettis County courthouse, to the county for a new jail site, should be made by Wednesday.

The County Court has made an offer to Mrs. Bèulah Salisbury, 809 West Broadway, owner, for the purchase of the property. Presiding Judge Henry Lamm Friday informed John Martin, attorney for Mrs. Salisbury, that the court must have an answer to the proposal by Wednesday.

A negative answer could result in condemnation proceedings being initiated for the acquisition of the property for public use.

New Junior High School Seen As Best Solution to Problem

By PETE DANIELS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Education has been variously called "the apprenticeship of life" and "the defense of a nation." It has also been said of learning that "neither piety, virtue, nor liberty can long flourish in a community where the education of youth is neglected."

Residents in Sedalia School District 200 will have an opportunity Feb. 4, to not only put those definitions of education to a practical use, but to provide themselves with an ultra-modern school at the same time.

At question is a $1,650,000 bond issue for the construction of a junior high school here.

Local educators, perhaps, are most acutely aware of the deeply-rooted need for a junior high school. Yet, the most obvious reasons for constructing the new school are the over-crowded conditions existing in the Sedalia school system now.

For Added Enjoyment

The recreation platform in Liberty Park has been used for square dances, political rallies and to seat audiences listening to band concerts, but for the first time it is this year being used for ice skating. Above, park employees under Superintendent Jack Coutts ready the new skating rink for opening Friday night or Saturday, as soon as the ice thickens. Thursday night one Sedalia fire truck and the Pettis County fire truck poured in some 12,000 gallons of water, and a one-inch hose has been going all day Friday to fill the 70 by 90 foot area to a depth of about six inches. Previous attempts to freeze the platform were not successful. This time Coutts covered the entire platform with a polyethylene sheet to hold the water until it freezes. (Democrat-Capital Photo.)

Slim Margin of Victory For the New GOP Whip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hugh Scott, a 68-year-old Pennsylvanian with backing from moderate Republican senators, was narrowly elected today as assistant GOP leader of the Senate.

Reports passed to Scott aides from the closed session of Republican senators said that Scott defeated Sen. Roman L. Hruska of Nebraska, a conservative, 23 to 20.

Scott will serve as deputy to Republican Senate Leader Everett M. Dirksen, of Illinois, re-elected without opposition.

In another GOP contest, Sen. Gordon Allott of Colorado, a 62-year-old conservative, defeated Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, 45, for chairmanship of the Republican Policy Committee.

The vote was not known immediately. Dirksen, who will be 73 Saturday and has not been in the best of health in recent years, was unopposed for re-election to the leadership post he has held for 10 years.

Only 45, Griffin has been a senator for less than three years but was one of the leaders of the successful fight last year against confirmation of Abe Fortas as chief justice.

He announced his candidacy

Thursday, citing the suggestion recently by Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., that one of the leadership positions go to one of the younger Republican senators.

Allott, is 62 and a veteran of 14 years in the Senate. He announced some weeks ago for the policy committee chairmanship held by retiring Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper.

Both Hruska, 64, and Scott, 68, entered the race to succeed Thomas H. Kuchel of California as assistant leader. Kuchel was defeated for renomination last year.

Stepped-Up Bombing Is Aimed at Delta Forest

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command today reported the heaviest B52 strikes in South Vietnam in three weeks, with almost 1,000 tons of bombs dropped northwest of Saigon and nearly 500 tons on the matted U Minh Forest deep in the Mekong Delta.

Ground action remained light throughout the nation, although allied sweeps continued from the southern delta to an area southwest of Da Nang where American Marines and South Vietnamese troops were grinding away at Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces.

Signs of fresh enemy movement were also reported from two more old battle areas—the A Shau Valley west of Hue and the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam.

Fliers from the carriers Coral Sea and Constellation hit the A Shau Valley with 31 sorties

Thursday, the heaviest concentration of Naval air strength reported in one day since the bombing of North Vietnam was halted on Nov. 1.

U.S. headquarters reported also that enemy activity in the DMZ had increased sharply in the Christmas-New Year period, with more than 500 "indications of enemy activity" in the 12 days since Dec. 22.

Marine headquarters in Da Nang released an interim report on the massive cordon operation known as Taylor Common about 25 miles southwest of Da Nang. It said in the past month the Marines and South Vietnamese have killed 934 enemy troops.

The report said American and South Vietnamese losses have been light.

The road mining occurred about 20 miles to the south at a point where Vietnamese workers assemble for army transport tation to their work. The mine exploded beneath an Army three-quarter-ton truck, killing 11 of the South Vietnamese crowded around. Another 16 were wounded, along with the two Americans in the truck.

U.S. headquarters reported three more big arms caches were turned up by allied sweeps today, adding to the mountain of war stores seized in recent months. American officers say that in 1968 U.S. and South Vietnamese forces captured enough weapons to equip more than six enemy infantry divisions. The Americans claim that this has been one of the chief reasons why enemy offensive operations have been curtailed.

Much of the booty has been taken in areas that previously had been touched only lightly by allied operations. Two of the supply dumps found today were in such areas.

Dim View By Front Of New U.S. Offer

PARIS (AP) — The National Liberation Front said today it would be "difficult to accept" the latest American proposals to settle the procedural argument stalling the Vietnam peace talks. But an NLF spokesman stopped short of rejection.

Tran Hoai Nam, deputy chief of the Front's peace delegation, said the U.S. proposals were "tortuous" and reflected the "absurd idea" that the Paris talks were to be a two-sided affair.

The proposal was made Thursday night by U.S. negotiator Cyrus R. Vance at a meeting with North Vietnamese Col. Ha Van Lam. Vance proposed six different forms the conference table might take, while Lau advanced another proposal for a round table.

The NLF spokesman told a news conference that all of Vance's table shapes reflected the "unacceptable" American idea that only two sides would be taking part in the discussions. North Vietnam and the NLF insist that the conference is to be a four-party affair at which the NLF is to have full status.

"It is very difficult to accept the proposals of Mr. Vance because they reflect the absurd idea of two sides," Nam said. When a newsman called attention to his wording—"difficult to accept"—and asked if his delegation rejected the U.S. proposals, Nam said with a smile: "I have already replied."

Vance at his meeting with Lau said the United States and South Vietnam would agree to sit at the round table proposed by Hanoi if a felt strip was stretched across the center of the table to symbolize the division of the conference participants into two "sides."

Vance met this morning with South Vietnamese Ambassador Pham Dang Lam for 90 minutes to give him the details of his meeting with Lau. There was no comment by either side.

The North Vietnamese, in a communique, said Vance has not yet accepted its "logical and reasonable proposal." It accused the Americans of deliberately delaying the conference.

Both U.S. and North Vietnamese proposals were said to be under study by the conference participants.

The circular table proposal symbolizes Hanoi's contention that the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front must have equal status with the three other delegations at the Paris talks. The Saigon government insists on some sort of arrangement that does not represent recognition of the NLF as anything more than a subordinate of Hanoi. The wrangle over table shapes and other details has blocked the start of the expanded peace talks for two months.

Lau declined to accept the felt strip proposal or any of Vance's five other table designs Thursday, but he said he would consider the proposals. Then he put forward this counterproposal:

Here it is, Jan. 3, and there hasn't been an entry yet for The Sedalia Democrat's First Baby of the Year Contest.

The first baby of the year born at Bothwell Hospital was a six-pound, ten-ounce baby girl to Mr. and Mrs. Leland Barnes, Warsaw. Although she was the first in 1969, young Miss Barnes just didn't fit the contest rules.

So, we're still waiting.

If the Americans accept a round table with nothing to suggest division, then North Vietnam will drop its demand for separate flags and nameplates in the conference room for the four delegations.

This would tend to minimize the NLF's claim that it is the only legitimate representative of the South Vietnamese people and entitled to equal status at the conference with the Americans and North Vietnamese.

Vance said his delegation would study the offer and discuss it with Saigon's representatives.

Vance put forward a three-point proposal to end the procedural deadlock:

—There should be no display of emblems or nameplates by any of the participants. Lau agreed.

—The order of speaking should be determined by lot. Lau agreed to a drawing, but said the drawing should be among the four delegations, not

New Assistant Leaders Are Kennedy and Scott

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts won his bid to become the Senate's assistant Democratic leader as the 91st Congress opened today.

The Republicans also chose a new man.

Just before Kennedy unseated Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania was chosen by Republicans as assistant minority leader—or "whip"—over conservative Sen. Roman L. Hruska of Nebraska.

By a 31 to 26 vote of a Democratic caucus, the youngest and only surviving Kennedy brother snatched a victory which could speed his way to the White House.

On both sides of the Senate aisle, the forces of political moderation or liberalism were strengthened. Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, had been party whip since 1965.

Scott, 68, a leader of moderate-progressive GOP forces, won victory by an even narrower margin, 23 to 20.

The two major contests were settled just before the opening of the formal ceremonies and oath-taking that launched the 91st Congress on its two-year career.

The House already had settled its leadership issues Thursday with the predicted victory of Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts over the unusual challenge of Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona. The minority leadership was won by Republican Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, unopposed.

In another major Republican contest, Sen. Gordon Allott of Colorado, 62, defeated Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, 45, today for the chairmanship of the Senate Republican Policy Committee. The vote was 25 to 18.

The top Senate posts in each party remained in the hands of Democrat Mike Mansfield of Montana, majority leader, and Republican Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, minority leader, who were unopposed.

With leadership contests and other formalities out of the way, the House and Senate will meet in joint session Monday to canvass presidential election returns, then turn to an array of issues that could provide early fireworks.

Both houses have before them a proposal to raise their own pay and the salaries of top federal officers including the President.

The House may have to grapple with the problem of whether to seat New York's Adam Clayton Powell, ousted in 1967 after being accused of misusing federal funds.

President Johnson is expected to press hard for early Senate action on the nuclear nonprolif-

Danforth Critical Of a Law

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Atty. Gen. elect John C. Danforth attacked the Missouri vehicle inspection law Thursday as "an administrative pain in the neck" and suggested it be repealed.

Danforth also endorsed recommendations for the improvement of law enforcement and the administration of justice in Missouri made by the Governor's Citizens Committee on Delinquency and Crime.

Danforth, speaking at a news conference, added some recommendations of his own in areas he said were not covered by the committee report.

The incoming attorney general said he is not convinced that the inspection law will prevent accidents and he can see no way it can be improved.

"It ought to be repealed, preferably before the end of the month so I won't have to get my car inspected," he said.

Danforth called for improved facilities at the Boonville State Training School for Boys. He also said the number of treatment personnel should be increased and their pay raised.

He also called for a statewide public defender system and a code spelling out the powers and duties of policemen during the period prior to arraignment on a criminal charge.

Ted Given a Boost By Defeating Long

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts unseated Louisiana's Russell B. Long today as the assistant Democratic leader of the Senate.

Kennedy's come-from-behind victory could help to propel him along the road to the White House and gives Democratic liberals a greater voice in the Senate's high command.

At a conference of Democratic senators just before the start of the 91st Congress, Kennedy outpolled Long by a vote of 31 to 26. Senators reported.

Long, chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, had held the post of assistant leader—or party whip—since 1965 when he was elected to succeed Hubert H. Humphrey.

The closed-door conference of Democratic senators was still in progress when a number of senators came out and passed the word to newsmen that Kennedy had won on the secret ballot.

Also in the conference Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana was re-elected as the Democratic leader without opposition. And Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia similarly won re-election as chairman of the Democratic conference, the No. 3 leadership post.

After the conference, Long told newsmen that on his motion

Kennedy's election had been made unanimous. He confirmed the vote had been 31-26.

"It was a hard fight and a fair fight," he said. "and I congratulate Sen. Kennedy."

Long, asked how he accounted for his defeat, said that Kennedy is more popular across the country than he and that the 36-year-old Massachusetts senator "had the benefit of a strong organization put together to elect his brother president."

Kennedy was asked if he regarded his victory as giving him a power base for a possible presidential race in 1972.

He answered "I do not believe it had any implications of that kind."

"It is an extremely time-consuming job which will give me many responsibilities in the Senate and will keep me busy there," he said.

Kennedy also told reporters he did not regard his triumph as a personal victory.

He said he was nominated at the caucus by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, a New Englander, and seconded by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a Westerner, and Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., a Southerner.

Kennedy said that as a part of the leadership he would do his

Pastor's Comment

By The Rev. Floyd T. Buntentbach
First Assembly of God Church

Recently I was alarmed by a statement in one of the nation's largest periodicals that claimed America's clergy had lost a great deal of respect as men of influence. Could it be there is some truth to this? A Christian editor asks: "What has happened to our national morals? An educator speaks out in favor of free love. A minister condones sexual excursions by unmarried adults. A high court labels yesterday's smut as today's literature. TV programs pour out a flood of sick, sadistic, suggestive situations."

Should the minister remain quiet about all this? He has a responsibility before God and decent society to denounce such things. If a minister will not dare to stand against these things, who can be expected to?

It is reported that we have a higher percent of youth in jails and reformatories than ever before. The figures on school dropouts, sex deviation, dope addiction, high school marriages, and crimes of passion are higher than ever.

On the religious scene the Gospel has been trimmed and compromised to fit the notions of what men want to hear. The Church is being merged with so many ideals, customs, and habits of the world that it is fast losing its spiritual influence. Men of old became great because they had enough of the grace of God to stand against crimes committed against society and outright sin, enough to denounce it.

Such men were Moses, Gideon, Nehemiah, Peter, Paul, Luther, Wesley, Calvin, Knox, Judson, Carey, Whitefield, Finney, and a great host of others. Surely some of what they possessed should shake off onto the leadership today. Godly leadership in every community is invaluable — in fact indispensable. God cannot use one who compromises with or condones the flagrant sins of society.

On the other hand it is not a matter of being against everything, it is a matter of offering "something better" to the people.

Peter said at the gate of the temple, "such as I have I give to thee." The minister cannot offer more than he possesses. He must be a partaker at God's Altar. His life must be an example of what he says is to be effective. The minister must be able to "Break the Bread of Life" — give to the people that which not only satisfies but is able to transform their whole being. In other words he must be able to lift the fallen to a new level of decency, give hope where there seems to be no hope.

Unless a minister is able to do this his ministry is ineffective. Never let it be said that the appointed minister today, fortified with this great unadulterated Gospel of the Living Christ, is ineffective when he has all the forces of righteousness by his side. Christ is the answer, not wars, riots, and immorality. The greatest weapon against the crimes of society is the Word of God. "The Holy Bible" proclaimed by the appointed minister of God. The great unrest in the world today is because people everywhere are in need of peace in their hearts. When we awake to this and do something about it there can be peace in the minds of those who are sordid and twisted today. We need this great change more than we need more laws or even greater enforcement of old ones. Peace of mind.

Special Rally For the Deaf Is Scheduled

Special services will be conducted at the First Assembly of God Church, Sixth and Summit, with the Rev. Harry Brotzman, Springfield, to speak. The services are scheduled for Friday Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 3, 4, and 5, with a rally designed for the deaf at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Rev. Brotzman is the National coordinator of the Deaf and Blind Division of the Assemblies of God Home Missions Department. Rev. Brotzman edits three National Publications, "The Silent Ambassador," "The Deaf Students Quarterly," and a monthly newsletter called "Signal." He travels nationally promoting rallies, conventions, and special revival meetings.

He received his ministerial training at Bethany Bible College, Santa Cruz, Calif., and Central Bible College in Springfield. A former pastor in Bellwood, Pa., Elgin, N.D., and St. Louis, he served as Youth Director for the North Dakota Assemblies of God. He is married and has two children.

FRED T. Wilkinson, director of the Department of Corrections of Missouri, will be the guest speaker Jan. 7 at the first Fellowship Dinner of the new year at First Christian Church. His subject will be, "Crime, Community and Corrections." He is a consultant to the Governor's Citizens Committee on Crime and Delinquency. A native of North Carolina, he holds an honorary LL.D. degree from John Marshall Law School in Atlanta.

'Outside' Mailman Is Turned Away

MILFORD, Conn. (AP) — A rural mail carrier here has withdrawn his application for a transfer to Seabrook, N.H., after more than 400 residents of Seabrook petitioned against having their mail delivered by an "outsider."

John R. Borkowski turned down the new job last week, a day before he was to take over a rural route in Seabrook, where he formerly lived. Seabrook Postmaster Oliver L. Carter said residents had forwarded their petition to the Boston postal region office.

Churches Deepen Their Involvement in Affairs

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "For I was hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me drink, I was a stranger and you welcomed me, I was naked and you clothed me, I was in prison and you came to me."

Who is that unfortunate one, described in Matthew 25, suffering all these miseries?

His identity is the strange "paradox which is Christianity," says the Rev. Peter J. Riga, a Catholic theologian of St. Mary's College in California. "The poor man is Christ. And the Christian who fails to see this will never see Christ."

As he himself put it, peoples response to him is synonymous with their conduct toward the world's needy. "Truly, I say to you," he said, "as you did it to one of the least of these, my brethren, you did it to me."

That is considered the kernel of active regard for Jesus. And today, after two millennia of the faith, the churches are intensifying their concentration on that point, in ways and to an extent unmatched before.

"The major development of 1968 was the deepening involvement of the churches at places of human suffering," says the Rev. Dr. Eugene L. Smith, head of the New York office of the World Council of Churches, in a year-end summary.

The mounting operations on this front are adding a new dimension to the old-style practices of individual charity by moving toward alleviating the conditions that keep masses in destitution and despair.

But the stepped-up religious efforts in this direction also produced resistance and controversy, including protests from groups opposing church involvement in social issues.

Job With Some Big Worries

DALLAS (AP) — Evaristo Sandoval traveled around the nation from one short-lived job to another a year ago, barely eking out an existence for his family.

Today Sandoval worries less about his own security and more about the pilots who fly the planes he inspects.

"The Navy is depending on us," he said. "If the job is not done right a pilot could get killed."

Sandoval was one of many jobless Mexican-Americans in the Lower Rio Grande Valley until a Dallas-based industry took a mobile classroom to him.

The company trained him and others, moved them with their families to Dallas and gave them a new way of life.

And what the labor mobility project did for Ling-Temco-Vought Aerospace Corp. is seen by company officials as highly profitable.

It added 684 skilled workers at a time when the unemployment rate in the Dallas metropolitan area had dropped to below two per cent. Column after column of classified ads begged for people to go to work.

What the project did for the people involved, though, is the real success story.

The plight of the migrant laborer in an increasingly mechanized world suddenly brightened. Now, this group possesses steady jobs.

"It is a better way of life," Alicia DeLeon says of her new job and home. Leon, both work at the plant and recently purchased a new home. They know an independence they never experienced before.

The project was a tremendous one in terms of the human element, said J. B. Andrasko, director of LTV's industrial relations.

He admitted the company had some doubts about attempting to relocate the Mexican-Americans from the valley—a traditionally rural, close-knit and family-oriented people.

Would they be able to cope with city congestion, homesickness for the quiet, peaceful valley and longing for parents, sisters, brothers, uncles, aunts and cousins who were part of their daily life?

In all, 2,184 people—men, women and children—became part of the experiment. Two hundred and sixty were school-age children.

"The keys to the success of the program were understanding, excellent counseling and a keen determination on the part of the workers and their families to escape their environment of unemployment, poverty and despair," said Andrasko.

Teamed with federal and state agencies, LTV Aerospace Corp. established three schools in the valley.

The schools began in 1967 and provided five weeks of training for 15 men at a time.

They were trained to be sheet metal assemblers. As they were graduated, the men were given permanent jobs at the Grand Prairie facility between Fort Worth and Dallas.

No Executions In Country In 1968

WASHINGTON (AP) — No prisoners were executed in the United States during 1968—possibly the first year in the nation's history the death sentence was not administered.

In reporting this Thursday the Bureau of Prisons noted, however, that 435 persons are under death sentences in this country.

The bureau's records, which it began in 1930, show two men were executed during 1967, one in California and one in Colorado. In 1966 only one person, in Oklahoma was executed.

During the period 1930-1967, a total of 3,859 persons were executed—3,826 by state authorities and 33 under federal jurisdiction. Of the total 86.4 per cent were for murders, 11.8 per cent for rape and 1.8 per cent for other offenses.

Negroes accounted for 53.5 per cent.

The Front Lines Are Very Near

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer

AFIKPO, Nigeria (AP) — As shoeless workmen apply fresh plaster to bullet holes outside, 26-year-old Mary Lou Bennett tube-feeds emaciated children whose lives depend on her.

Two months ago she was home in New York. For the next year, she'll be here, at a mission hospital on a hill in this war-racked town bordering secessionist Biafra on the north-east.

"At night I can hear the firing," Miss Bennett says. "I guess I'm scared. They don't tell us anything. I don't know what's happening around here. But there's so much to do."

Two other American girls work with her in other parts of the hospital, run by the Rev. Rory O'Brien, a 39-year-old Irish missionary who listens to Clancy Brothers folk song records for recreation.

Afikpo is firmly in federal hands, but the front line is just 13 miles to the south.

The girls—and five other American girls in the region—volunteered for duty in Nigeria through the U.S. Catholic Medical Mission Board and are paid by the Catholic Relief Service.

"It's so frustrating," Miss Bennett told a visitor. "There's no medicine, nothing to work with."

She takes care of the acute deficiency disease ward where two dozen youngsters hover near death for lack of protein.

"See that little one over there?" she asked, indicating a frail child with pencil-thin limbs. "He's the only one who has responded, the only one."

"All we can do is keep feeding high-protein formula and hope it works," she said.

Up the highway in the headquarters town of Abakaliki, Judy Baker, 22, of South Bend, Ind., does much the same thing as Saint Kizitas Hospital.

She treats 120 patients in a former leper ward, part of a general hospital run by Medical Missionaries of Mary.

Working with her are Nancy Bockin, 24, of Cleveland, Ohio and Sister Frederick Mary of New York City, on loan from her school near Ogoja.

"It's grand being here," said Miss Baker, her hair damp from the intense humidity, "but so much work..."

She went on: Only two girls for 120 patients... actually, it's usually only one girl. Nancy spends about three days a week out in the bush.

Another big problem is isolation from friends and loneliness, Miss Baker said. Military roadblocks prevent nighttime travel and the war has closed down what amusements abakaliki had.

Business Mirror

Packard's Background May Prove Hindrance

NEW YORK (AP) — David Packard, named to be deputy secretary of defense in the Nixon administration, is as finely educated, broadly experienced and as thoroughly accomplished a man as likely could be found for the spot.

This, however, might not mean to the Senate, which must pass on his selection, that Packard is the man for the job. As some may view his appointment, these very accomplishments could create conflicts.

This is the background:

David Packard was a 27-year-old former engineer for General Electric back in 1939 when he and William Hewlett decided to go into business for themselves. They began in a garage with a few hundred dollars.

The two men had been classmates a few years earlier at Stanford, where Packard was Phi Beta Kappa and a member of the football and basketball teams. Hewlett went on to Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Packard went on to Colorado College and then took a graduate degree in electrical engineering at Stanford.

Asked in an interview why he wanted to go into business for himself, Packard gave a reason that contemporary young people will recognize. He did not feel, he said, that he could express himself in a large corporation as well as in his own business.

He proved his point. From 1939 to 1947 he and Hewlett operated a successful partnership in the manufacture of electronic measuring devices. Then they incorporated and began an extraordinary expansion.

By 1956 their annual sales were $20 million and net income close to $1.8 million. Sales have risen in every year since then, reaching $200 million by 1966 and $266 million last year, when $20.6 million was earned.

Hewlett-Packard now employs about 13,000 workers in the United States, Japan, Switzerland, Germany, the Netherlands, Mexico and several South American countries. It is a world leader in precision electronics.

As one of the foremost companies in its field, Hewlett-Packard naturally did business with the biggest electronics customer, the U.S. government. Perhaps as much as one-third of its sales involve government purchases.

Somehow, as seems true of many executives, Packard found time also to serve as a director of General Dynamics, U.S. steel, and Pacific Gas & Electric. He was associated also with Chase Manhattan Bank, one of the world's largest.

He also contributed time to activities that brought no immediate income, such as the American Management Association.

tion and the Japan-California Association, an international group that seeks improved trade relations.

He became a trustee of his alma mater as well as of Colorado College and an executive of the Stanford Research Institute, where raw research is turned into useful products and services.

His time and managerial abilities were spread even more through association with the National Merit Scholarship Program and as a member of the Board of Education in Palo Alto, Calif., site of the company's headquarters.

His interest in education results partly from his role as a father of four, one of whom is a professor of humanities at the University of California at Los Angeles.

As a low key, soft spoken administrator, some consider Packard a model. Those who know him consider him also to be a thoroughly modern man, aware of the problems of workers and of students who soon will be his employees, unafraid of change and not overly impressed by his millions.

In order to take the defense job Packard has devised this plan:

—Place his $300 million of stock in a charitable trust for the entire period of his stay in government. Resign as head of his company. Sever ties with other corporations. Sell stock in companies with government business.

It would seem, then, that this highly qualified man would be ideal for the job. Or would he? Nagging doubts will be expressed by some senators. As a member of the military-industrial complex, they might ask Packard if he:

Should sell all his stock in Hewlett-Packard? Can be impartial even with his stock held in trust? Would find it possible to be impartial to his own firm even if he sold all his stock?

Those who ask the question then must ask perhaps even larger ones:

Should the U.S. government and its people be denied the services of so accomplished an executive? What penalties must an individual accept because of his success in life?

OBITUARIES

Herman R. Kettle

Herman R. Kettle, 61, 713 East 15th, died at his home at 6:50 a.m. Friday. He had been in failing health for several years.

Mr. Kettle was born at Burford, Ark., Jan. 10, 1907, son of the late Henry and Anna Riegel Kettle.

He received his education in Independence, Kan., schools.

He was married at Parsons, Kan., May 1, 1926, to Miss Velma Clary. They were the parents of five children. One son, Donald Joe Kettle, died Feb. 16, 1949.

Mr. Kettle was employed at the M.K.T. shops in Parsons, Kan., for several years before coming to Sedalia where he was employed as a sheet metal worker at the Missouri-Pacific shops until he retired in 1959.

One of a family of five children, he was preceded in death by two sisters, who died in infancy, and a brother, Harold Kettle.

Mr. Kettle was a member of the Epworth Methodist Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Velma Kettle; two sons, Leon Kettle, St. Louis; Merle Kettle, LaMonte; two daughters, Mrs. Elaine Ball, Columbus, Miss.; Mrs. Carol Botcher, 1610 South Stewart, one sister, Mrs. Gladys Beaumont, Rock Island, Ill., and eight grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Ewing Funeral Home at 1:00 p.m. Monday with the Rev. Philip J. Bowline, pastor of the Epworth Methodist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in the Memorial Park Cemetery.

Miss Ruth McKenzie

Miss Ruth McKenzie, 113 East Pettis, died at Bothwell Hospital Thursday evening.

Born in Ottumwa, the only daughter of Walter and Anna McKenzie, she came to Sedalia at an early age.

She attended Lincoln School, now Hubbard, at Sedalia and later graduated from Lincoln University in Jefferson City. She later attended Quindera University in Kansas, where she was a member of the choral club. She also attended George R. Smith College, formerly located here.

Miss McKenzie taught school in Clinton and California and spent the past 22 years teaching the sixth and seventh grades at Hubbard.

She was a member of the A.M.E. Church.

Survivors include her mother, Mrs. Anna Byrd of the home; one uncle and one aunt.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Lake Ozark Man Killed in Crash

LAKE OZARK, Mo. (AP)—David Dean, 20, of Lake Ozark, was killed early today when the car he was driving went through a guard rail and plunged over an embankment on highway 54 in Miller County.

Authorities said Dean was alone in the auto when the accident occurred on a new straight stretch of highway near Lake Ozark.

Accidents

Jerry Gene Bush, 18, Route 2,
Lincoln, was taken to Bothwell Hospital Thursday for examination and possible treatment following a one-car accident on Route B, about 1.5 miles south of Highway 52 in Benton County. He was admitted for examination for a possible concussion.

Witnesses at the scene of the accident told the Highway Patrol Bush apparently lost control of his 1964 Chevrolet on a curve, went off the road and into a yard at the home of William Marriott, Route 2, Cole
Camp. The car went through two fences before coming to rest.

Two cars collided at Sixth and Monteau at 3:30 p.m.
Thursday.

Involved were a 1964
Pontiac, driven east on Sixth by Rickey Parks, 22, Whiteman
A.F.B., and a 1960 Comet, driven south on Monteau by Richard Fitzwilliam, 16, 2512
Wing Ave.

A 1960 Chevrolet owned by Willard Lee Woolery, 24, 1106
South Massachusetts, sustained minor hit-and-run damage Thursday night while it was parked on the Safeway parking lot.

Circuit Court

Alvin Larry Geromini,
Kansas City, filed a petition in Circuit Court Thursday seeking a judgement of $50,000 in damages plus court costs against Charles Julina and Eva M. Upton.

The petition stems from injuries allegedly sustained by Geromini in an automobile accident 1.3 miles south of the Benton County in Hickory
County on Highway 65 on Sept.
4, 1968.

Police Report

Gordon John, LaMonte, manager of Lums Restaurant,
West Broadway, reported Thursday that someone had tried to break into the establishment. He said it appeared someone had tried to force the lock on the west door, probably New Year's night.

Charles Dale Maggard, 1007 West Seventh, reported to police someone broke a back window at the above address between 7:15 and 9:30 p.m.
Dec. 31 and took items valued at an estimated $1,000.

Among the items reported missing were a revolver, a stereo radio, a watch and several items of clothing.

Police received a crime alert report at 9:25 a.m. Thursday that a window was broken in a building on the Northeast corner of Main and Kentucky.
Upon investigation police discovered that vandals threw a beer can through the window.

Police Court

David Abels, Overland Park, Kan., charged with careless and imprudent driving, forfeited his $25 bond.

David Beyer, 101 East Boonville, charged with careless and imprudent driving, pleaded innocent and the case was dismissed.

Elbert T. Bandy, 1704 East Fifth, charged with careless and imprudent driving, pleaded guilty and was fined $75.

Otto Bahner, 239 South
Stewart, charged with careless and imprudent driving, pleaded guilty and was fined $10.

Sammy Jackson, 816 North Monteau, charged with making loud and unnecessary noise with a motor vehicle, pleaded innocent but was found guilty and fined $25.

was $1,650,000, the decision was made in its favor.

But that wasn't the only reason.

The Smith-Cotton High School building is overcrowded, with a student-teacher ratio averaging over 40-1.
It's not that bad on the elementary level, but the margin is close.

Currently, there are approximately 400 eighth graders enrolled and in class at the Smith-Cotton building.
Another 400 seventh graders are attending the public elementary schools.

With the establishment of the junior high school, Board of Education representatives said, the student-teacher ratio average could easily drop to 30 to 1.

If the junior high school bond issue receives its required two-thirds majority, all seventh and eighth graders in the Sedalia public school system would attend school at the new building.

That would provide at least one "new" classroom at each public school in Sedalia—space vitaly needed since the kindergarten requirements set by the state must be met.

Passage of the bond issue would mean a 10-cent increase in school taxes here; the current levy stands at $2.82 per $1000 assessed valuation. Even with the increase, Sedalia would have the second lowest school tax levy in Missouri in cities of 5,000 population or more.

St. Charles has the highest rate, at $4.95, and Perryville the lowest with $2.75. Sedalia, after passage of the issue, would still lag behind Jefferson City in school tax levied.

Although bond issues of this type are normally paid over a 20-year period, the local school district could divest itself of the new bonded indebtedness in 17 years.

William H. Hall, Sedalia industrial development director, was unanimously chosen by the Board of Education to coordinate the bond issue campaign.

"Because the board of education wisely invested surplus funds from previous bond issues," Hall said, "we can now use this money to help pay the bond debt which would result from the junior high school issue."

"The school tax levy," he said, "has remained static since 1960, but property values have increased. The present tax levy was based on assessed valuations of property several years ago. Property values have gone up since then, and a surplus of funds was created as a result."

"According to law, the only thing you can use that surplus for is paying off bonded indebtedness," he emphasized.
"Consequently," he said,
"once voters in the school district approve the issue, they would in effect almost place themselves one step ahead of the game."

Since this is a school bond election, voters need only be eligible, not registered, to vote, Hall added. Eligibility is based on age and period of residence within the school district.

Votes will be cast at Horace Mann, Mark Twain, Whittier and Washington Schools, Hall reported.

—The shape of the table could be round, as Hanoi proposed some weeks ago, but there would have to be some device to divide the parley into U.S.-Saisides.

Vance then proposed six table forms which an American official later sketched for newsmen.

There was an ellipse, with the two groups facing each other along each side; a doughnut with sunken working areas at opposite sides of the circle; a doughnut with a rectangular table crossing the hollow center; a doughnut with ears formed by two projecting work tables for the secretarial staffs; a doughnut with thin felt strips across the rim at opposite sides, and a solid round table with a strip of felt across its center.

One U.S. official described Vance's proposal as "a Herculean effort."

Military Fuel Responsibility Is Transferred to the Army

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense officials have relieved the Navy of all further responsibility for the amount and quality of fuel intended for vital U.S. military operations in Southeast Asia.

This was learned in the aftermath of disclosures that at least 5.5 million gallons of fuel and lubricants destined for U.S. Army and Air Force units in Thailand were stolen in 1967 alone.

General Accounting Office investigators, in a report to Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., blamed the massive thefts on bribery, forgery, collusion and official laxity.

They said spot checks indicated 52 per cent of all gasoline and lubricants delivered to Thai service stations for use by U.S. military vehicles was stolen. Forty per cent of all diesel fuel sent to one air base alone never arrived, they reported.

The GAO said the Navy Fuel Supply Office had sole responsibility in Bangkok for assuring petroleum products delivered by private contractors complied in quantity and quality with standards set by the government.

A Navy source said Defense Department supply officials ordered the Army to replace the Navy's fuel inspection functions in Southeast Asia effective last Wednesday.

The substitution was not announced publicly by the Defense Department, but a Pentagon information officer confirmed it.

Defense Department supply officials also said the change was imminent.

But they insisted the action was routine, had "been in the works a long time," and had no relation to the widespread thefts.

One official said the action reflects only "the fact that the Navy is no longer the prime user" of petroleum products in the region.

Meanwhile, John McGee, the man Proxmire credits for "blowing the whistle" on the oil thefts, said his Navy superiors have instructed him not to talk to reporters about the internal operations of the Navy Fuel Supply Office.

McGee, a civilian whose assignment as a petroleum quality control representative in Bangkok was terminated abruptly last month, said he was asked to read and initial a document forbidding employees to publicly discuss the fuel office's operations.

He said he was told all information requested by the press would be supplied by Navy information officers.

McGee has said he did not request the transfer to what he said is a "make-work" clerical job. He said the Navy also once tried unsuccessfully to have him fired.

Sen. Proxmire—who asked for the GAO investigation after receiving complaints of lax procedures and illegal activities from McGee—meanwhile issued an invitation to all persons in and out of government to bring similar complaints to him.

"To anyone who has the courage and integrity to make a justified complaint, I promise immediate investigative action by the best and fastest means possible," Proxmire said in an interview.

"And I will take any step within my power to protect informants from any harassment or punitive action," the Wisconsin senator said.

Proxmire, chairman of the government economy subcommittee of the joint House-Senate Economic Committee, has said he will send the final GAO report to the Justice Department to determine if criminal prosecutions are warranted.

He has also asked the Air Force to make public copies of 31 investigative reports prepared on the thefts by its Office of Special Investigation. He said he hopes the reports indicate who received the stolen fuels.

The Defense Department, in a reply to the GAO report, said the Air Force investigations resulted in the convictions of several military personnel who received sentences ranging from fines to five years at hard labor.

Imports Of Meat Go Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman estimated 1969 meat imports Thursday at 1,035,000,000 pounds, compared with 990 million pounds estimated on Oct. 1 for 1968.

Federal law requires the secretary to issue quarterly estimates of quota meat imports expected for the current year in relation to an adjusted base quota.

Freeman announced this year's basic import quota at 988 million pounds, compared with 950.3 million for 1968.

The law provides that the annual basic quota may be exceeded by 10 per cent in the quarterly estimates before actual quotas are imposed on individual countries.

Thus, the point at which quotas would be imposed this year is 1,086,800,000 pounds, about 41 million pounds more than the 1968 trigger level.

Freeman said his first estimate for 1969—roughly 50 million pounds below the new trigger level—would have been more if major foreign suppliers had not imposed self-restraints on meat they planned to ship to the United States this year.

Meat subject to quota regulations consists mostly of fresh or frozen beef and veal, but goat and mutton also is included. Australia and New Zealand are the major suppliers of quota-type meat.

The annual basic quota is adjusted in relation to changes in domestic meat consumption. Since U.S. consumption has been rising in recent years, so have the yearly quota levels for meat imports.

Surgeon Goes To The Dogs

NEW YORK (AP) — The surgeon who directed a heart and kidney transplant on New Year's Eve has agreed to perform open-heart surgery on a German shepherd puppy as a gesture of gratitude to the many animals used in heart research.

Dr. C. Walton Lillehei, surgeon-in-chief at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center, plans to make X-ray studies today of Kai, the four-month-old pet of Allan and Kevin Fogel, 8-year-old twins of Brooklyn.

On Tuesday, Dr. Lillehei directed a 60-man team in transplanting the heart and kidneys of a 48-year-old psychoanalyst to three recipients.

Dr. Lillehei, a former teacher of Dr. Christiaan Barnard who performed the first human heart transplant, volunteered to perform the open-heart operation "on behalf of the many dogs who have served to benefit mankind in helping develop these techniques."

"Dogs have been the backbone of open-heart surgery," he added, explaining that their hearts are "almost identical" to the human heart.

Dr. Lillehei read about the dog's plight in a letter to The Daily News from Kai's owners.

In the letter, the young boys said their veterinarian had told them that Kai must be put to sleep because he had a congenital heart defect which can only be cured by surgery.

Kai was examined by Dr. Lillehei and admitted to the hospital's kennel for experimental animals Thursday afternoon.

Dr. Lillehei said he and his colleagues suspect that the veterinarian's diagnosis is correct and one of the valves in the pup's heart will have to be replaced.

If the tests confirm this diagnosis, he said, the operation may be performed some time next week.

Fancy Apartments In Stinking Mess

NEW YORK (AP) — Several blocks of Sutton Place luxury apartments have been inundated for a month in a flow of raw sewage into basements of buildings where five-room apartments sell for $70,000 and carry monthly maintenance charges of up to $600.

An 18-inch sewer line has ruptured 12 feet beneath Sutton Place and the city's repair crew has been at work for three weeks. They hope to install a new pipe by next week.

And while many residents worry about the sewage, they hesitate to speak out, for fear that publicity will lower the value of their apartments. But complaints of the stench have come from residents as high as the 12th floor.

Firemen Arrive A Little Late

MOUNTAIN SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The firemen arrived too late to save the gasoline station, cafe, general store, an adjoining house, a house trailer and four cars. But then they had to travel 120 miles.

Since there is little water in this Mojave Desert community, Bob Schepe and Paul Wearing of the Yucca Valley unit of the state Division of Forestry were called. It took them two hours Wednesday, driving a pumper wagon loaded to the brim with 500 gallons of water.

They saved a second house trailer and a garage.

Five-Alarm Blaze

More than 100 firemen fought a five-alarm fire at the Gulf Oil Refinery in Philadelphia, Pa., late Thursday and

Spring Fashions Appear To Have Changed Little

NEW YORK (AP) — The first of the spring fashions came in like a lamb, not like a lion, and women who want something new and different might well wish for a little more roar on the racks.

By the end of the first full day of the New York Couture Group showing Thursday, the 200 fashion reporters who gathered in a Manhattan hotel for previews of next season's styles had seen little in the way of change.

The one message that all the ready-to-wear designers and manufacturers—whose collections ranged from a low of about $30 to a high of about $700—got across was the upcoming popularity of pleats.

There were tiny knife pleats on swirling skirts, short and long; side panel pleats to give skirts a smooth line and free moving fit; and even inverted back pleats topped by half belts.

Marie McCarthy, designing for the firm of Larry Aldrich, opened the afternoon session with a series of short and swingy dresses, many featuring either snug inset midriffs or belts.

"There is no one dominant fashion silhouette," said Aldrich in introducing the collection, adding that he was offered a variety of choices for a variety of women.

Most of the difference in the clothes came in detail, not basic shape, however. One dress was gathered with a sash, another with a belt. One had a side closing, another a front closing.

Among the highlights were a black and white silk dress with knife-pleated skirt topped by a stretched-out sleeveless orange overblouse, a red, blue, green and white paisley pants and tunic combination with a deeply plunging neck and a black silk faille dinner dress styled like an artist's smock—full with huge bow and low patch pockets.

Prices of the Aldrich collection ranged from about $175 to $500.

Davidow, long known for coats and suits, promised a "newer, younger feeling," but again, only the details were different. The high quality fabrics, simple and classic cut and easy silhouette remained—still good, but not really new.

In the lower price range, David Crystal showed numerous variations of his now-famous simple sport shirtwaist with a crocodile embroidered on the left breast. Adapted from the men's shirts named after the French tennis star Lacoste, the dresses now come in step-in as well as pull-over variety and are available for children as well as adults. The dresses are $33.

The morning show opened with Jo Copeland who kept the "no pants for streetwear" theme and slightly startled a crowd ready for oodles and oodles of pants.

Spring apparently is destined to step prettily, but gingerly and gently onto a stage already dazzled by pop, op and other far-out fashions.

Prisoners Give Sheriff Lesson

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (AP) — Pottawattamie County Sheriff Roy Michael found empty cells in his jail Thursday and this note:

"I sincerely (sic) hope that this escape will help you get a new jail because you need one. I knot (knocked) out the wall in an hour. Sincerely yours, Mike and Bill, K.C."

Three of the escapees were picked up in Omaha, Neb. The four were being held for trials.

Michael said the prisoners used a steel brace from a table to pry a steel plate from the wall and dig a hole about 18 inches in diameter through the outer wall.

Movie Brat Found Her Happiness in Marriage

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Some child actors are ruined for life by the precocious demands their careers make upon them before they reach maturity.

But that didn't happen to Bonita Granville, the movie brat whom film audiences a generation ago loved to hate.

Today she is happily married to Jack Wrather, millionaire rancher, oilman and entertainment entrepreneur, and keeps her hand in show business by working as assistant producer on his CBS television show, "Lassie."

Bonita, born in New York City, is the daughter of the late Bernard Granville, a Ziegfeld Follies star, and Rosina Timponi Granville, also a well known stage performer.

"My father was one of the first Broadway musical stars to earn $5,000 a week," she recalled.

Her own acting career started at the age of 7 when she went to Hollywood in 1931 and almost immediately was signed to appear in "Westward Passage," starring Ann Harding and a then obscure young British actor, Laurence Olivier.

One of the early highlights of her career was "These Three," in which she played a hateful brat so successfully that for a few years she was saddled with a series of such unsympathetic roles.

As she graduated, however, from child star to ingenue to dramatic actress she was given more ingratiating roles in such films as "The Plough and the Stars," "Ah, Wilderness," "Cavalcade," and "H.M. Pulham, Esq."

Altogether she appeared in 55 films.

Educated largely within studio walls, she was raised strictly by her mother—her father died when she was 13—and never had a date until she was 17.

"The work left me with no scars that I know of now," she said, smiling. "Maybe they'll creep up on me later."

"I was barely 16 when I graduated from high school and wanted to go to Stanford University, but I decided I simply couldn't afford to. The films were too lucrative. I wasn't a big star in those days, in the sense that Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland were, but I was making $1,000 a week on a 40-week contract."

"When I met you in 1946," broke in her husband, "you were making $10,000 every three weeks."

They met on a blind date and he proposed 10 days later, but she kept Wrather waiting 10 months before accepting his proposal.

Santa Gives a Chuckle

Every year after Christmas somebody starts analyzing Santa Claus.

There was the fellow last year who criticized the concept of Santa as a jolly fat man. It set a bad example, he maintained, because overweight people are not happy, or otherwise not as healthy as skinny ones.

Now comes a professor of anthropology to point out a curious contradiction in the Santa Claus legend.

We live in a society, says Eric Wolf of the University of Michigan, that is based on the mass production of goods by highly specialized machines. The goods are purchased with money and the desire for the goods is promoted by massive advertising.

Yet once a year, "we insist that the toys distributed to children emanate from Santa Claus' workshop at the North Pole, operated on a handicraft level by non-unionized dwarfs. We tell children that their toys are delivered by reindeer sled and through their chimney, and that their gifts were not bought by father and mother and Aunt Fanny but by a mythical gentleman of extraordinary outward appearance."

Why? Because adults use Santa Claus, thinks Wolf, as an "equalizer" in a world that is really based on interpersonal competition and in which goods and power are won by the more successful from the less successful. At Christmastime, family financial priorities are rearranged so that "Santa Claus" can give an electric train to a poor child who in the real world would have to be content with less.

We encourage children to believe in the magical economy of Santa Claus to protect them from the true reality of a world of adults in which men are pitted against each other in endless competition.

At the same time, as a guardian and promoter of morality, Santa Claus is used as a convenient introduction to American life. The children trade moral behavior for goods, and in this sense, says Wolf, they become participants in the market of capitalistic society.

Meanwhile, back at the North Pole, mythical, overweight Santa Claus, immune to any psychological dissection, chuckles in his beard as he watches his nonunionized dwarfs prepare for another Christmas to gladden the hearts of millions of unanalytical children — and maybe some adults, too.

Man's Folded-up Life

The average white-collar American, hard-working, active go-getter that he is, spends well over eight years out of his life sitting down.

The source of this allegation is a company which is in the business of supporting the habit.

According to the American Seating Company, makers of public seating, the average student spends 15,000 hours at a desk from kindergarten through college. In the course of a working career, he will spend another 60,000 hours seated.

That figures out to nearly 8½ years in a sitting position before he is eligible to retire and start singing, "Old rocking chair's got me."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

DREW PEARSON and JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — A flagrant case of Israeli intrusion into American politics has just come to light. The Israeli Consul General in New York, Michael Arnon, arranged to have a special Israeli award given to Hamilton Fish, notorious isolationist ex-congressman, at the very time Fish's son, Hamilton Fish, Jr., was running for Congress on the Republican ticket in the 28th district of New York.

Since young Fish's margin was close — two per cent over Democrat John Dyson — it's possible the Israeli award was the deciding factor in Fish's victory.

The irony is that Ham Fish was a great defender of the Hitler regime when in Congress, and rented his home in Manhattan to the Nazi Consul General. He was one of the originators of the House Unamerican Activities Committee, and conducted various witch-hunts against liberals, meanwhile introducing statements in the congressional record favorable to such fascist organizations as the Silver Shirts.

Fish was also a leader of the America Firsters, strongly opposed American involvement in the war against Hitler, voted against the draft and other measures to prepare for the war. Hans Thompson, German charge d'affairs in those pre-war years, sent a dispatch to Foreign Minister Ribbentrop in Berlin describing Fish as giving him great help. The same Thompson described Drew Pearson to Ribbentrop as "one of the negative newspaper influences" as far as Nazi Germany was concerned.

Despite this record, Israel Consul Arnon bypassed the Israeli embassy in Washington and appealed direct to Jerusalem for a special award for Ham Fish. It was okayed by Premier Eshkol.

The award was considered so important politically that a special ceremony was staged toward the climax of Ham Fish, Jr.'s, campaign for Congress, at which his father was presented with the award by Consul General Arnon. The two leading Republican Jews of New York state, Sen. Jacob Javits and Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz, were present to make the occasion more important.

Arnon obviously knew that an Israeli award to Fish would take the sting out of pro-Nazi criticism, and wanted to help the Republicans get control of Congress. Arnon has now been recalled to Jerusalem where he has been appointed secretary of the Israeli Cabinet — a promotion.

— American Jews Worry —

Many American Jewish leaders are troubled over Israel's tough retaliatory tactics in the bombing of the Beirut airport.

The latter is recognized as a brilliant and daring piece of commando strategy which emphasized the power of Israel to carry out the old testament doctrine of an eye-for-an-eye punishment for those who attack or sabotage Israel. Yet the long range aftermaths could be serious.

Already there are indications of two important repercussions:

1. The hardening of anti-Israel opinion in the moderate Arab world.
2. Loss of Israeli goodwill in the United States. If the eye-for-an-eye policy were adopted by Washington, it's pointed out, we would have bombed Jordan in retaliation for the murder of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy by a Jordanian citizen in Los Angeles.

Regarding the first, Lebanon has always been considered one of the more moderate Arab states, in fact the only moderate state on Israel's borders. Lebanon's population is almost 50 per cent Christian, and not as hostile toward the Jews as Moslem Arabs.

In fact, Lebanon was believed one of the countries which might line up with President Bourguiba of Tunisia, the Shah of Iran, and King Hussein of Jordan in working out a permanent peace.

However, the commando raid on the Beirut airport has blown all this up in smoke. Nor will it now be possible to get peace support from the other moderate Moslems. The Beirut raid has played right into the hands of the militants. It's considered highly doubtful that President Nasser, who has been much more moderate of late, will continue such a line.

— U.S. Resentment —

In the United States, however, the long range repercussions from the Beirut airport raid may be even more serious; for in the United States there has been a great reservoir of goodwill for Israel without which it would be impossible for Israel to exist.

Not only does Israel's balance of funds come from American Jews, but also, in recent years, from non-Jewish American banks and investors. Non-Jewish money has been raised because the Israeli government has won confidence as a place of sound investment. This can readily be dispelled, however, by a hard-nosed policy which kills the chances of peace.

Fortunately, anti-semitism has largely disappeared in the United States except from the right wing. However, American Jewish leaders fear it could come back.

After the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King by a white man in Memphis, the eye-for-an-eye retaliation by a minority of Negroes burning such cities as Washington, Baltimore, and Kansas City seriously hurt the Negro cause. The people whose businesses were burned in these cities, many of them Jewish, had nothing to do with the murder of Dr. King, and they were bitter over Negro militant revenge.

Moderate Jews fear that the repercussions from a militant segment of Jews in Israel may likewise hurt not only Israel but other Jews all over the world.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q — I've made a substantial pledge to my church's building fund. Can I take this deduction on my 1969 return if it is to my advantage?

A — Deductions for charitable contributions can only be taken for the tax year they are actually paid. If you pay all or part of your pledge this year then you must take the deduction on your 1968 return for the amount actually paid. To take the deduction on your 1969 return you should postpone your payments until 1969.

MONEY CLIPS

by Mort Reed

Shoot Him On the Spot

DEAR MR. REED: Some time ago I received a coin in a shopping center that looked very much like a penny. It had the words, "If anybody attempts to tear it down, shoot him on the spot." The word DIX is in the center. On the other side is a picture of a flag encircled with "The Flag of Our Country" and the date 1863. Can you tell me anything about this coin?—A Reader, (West Palm Beach Post), West Palm Beach, Fla.

ANSWER: The coin is a Civil War token issued by a private concern during the Civil War. They are available with 1863 and 1864 dates. During the war the Confederacy threatened to sail into the Bay of New Orleans and shoot down the flag of the Union and replace it with their own.

The commander of the fort wired President Lincoln of the pending offense and asked what he should do. Mr. Dix, secretary of the Navy to Mr. Lincoln, sent the following wire: "If anybody attempts to tear it down, shoot him on the spot."

In average condition these pieces are worth approximately 50 to 75 cents. In extremely fine to uncirculated condition, they will bring upwards of $1.50.

DEAR MR. REED: Where can I find genuine old-time wooden nickels and where can I contact a source that reproduces them today? Is it illegal to counterfeit wooden nickels?—George M. (Rocky Mountain News), Denver, Colo.

DEAR GEORGE M: In the classified section of Coin World you will find a column headed WOODEN MONEY —No. 113. This column is devoted to nothing but that type of product. It tells you where you can buy, sell or trade these "coins" and lists the names of manufacturers.

Counterfeiting could be as illegal as reproducing regular money. The original may be copyrighted or patented and the penalty for infringement is often more expensive than buying the rights to reproduce. I would suggest you contact the person or firm that issued the wooden nickel you would like to copy. It may save you some embarrassment.

TO MONEY CLIPS: I would like some information on a Liberty-head nickel dated 1908. It has a V in a wreath on one side and a Liberty-head and 13 stars on the other. There is no mint mark.—Mrs. Frieda Patterson, (Terre Haute Star), Terre Haute, Ind.

DEAR MRS. PATTERSON: There were 22,686,177 1908 nickels issued by the Philadelphia mint and 1,620 proofs. The Liberty-head was designed by Charles E. Barber who also designed the 1892 dime, quarter and half-dollar. The Red Book lists it at 50 cents, $1, $2, $5 and $25 in good, very good, fine, extra fine and uncirculated condition. Proofs are listed at $50 to $55.

DEAR MR. REED: I save pennies and have two books started but the first four cents are missing. I have tried to buy them through dealers but they are too expensive. Can you tell me of a collector that would be willing to help? I need the 1909-S, 1922-D, 1924-D, 1926-S, and the 1931-S. I have the 1909-S, VDB.—F. D. Pizzo Jr., (Norristown Times-Herald), Trooper, Pa.

DEAR MR. PIZZO: You need the very same coins millions of others need. I would suggest attending your local coin club meeting and seek out a trader. He may want your extras. If this doesn't help, get a copy of Coin World and look through the six classifications under TRADING POST. This section usually occupies three or four pages and many ads are listed wanted-to-trade coins of certain dates for others of different dates.

GLOBAL VIEW

Tensions to Ebb in '69 As Soviet Mends Fences

By LEON DENNEN

NEA Foreign News Analyst

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (NEA) —What are the prospects for peace in 1969?

In a world dominated by mighty nations with conflicting ideologies and economic systems, peace is never a certainty. Nevertheless, international crystal ball gazers foresee an East-West truce in 1969 — a relaxation of tensions, if not peace.

The Kremlin leaders, it is increasingly clear, would like to have a summit meeting with Richard Nixon soon after he enters the White House Jan. 20. Plagued by mounting domestic and international problems, they are again interested in detente — for the present at least. It is in their interest to revive the illusion of peaceful coexistence while they mend their fences at home and abroad.

The Russians, like Americans, would like to see an end to the conflict in Vietnam. They now fear that only their Red Chinese enemies will benefit from the war in a part of the world that is completely dominated by Peking.

Moscow also finds it increasingly burdensome to lavish Russia's limited resources on erratic and ungrateful allies like Egypt's President Nasser and Cuba's Fidel Castro.

However, there is another compelling reason why the Kremlin's uneasy rulers are suddenly eager to meet with the new President of the United States. They obviously hope to recapture at a summit conference some of the prestige they lost after the Red army's invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Communist party boss Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Aleksei Kosygin would like to erase the memory of their brutal assault on the "fraternal Communist nation. But the heroic passive resistance of the Czechoslovak people keeps Moscow's infamy alive.

Even the World Federation of Trade Unions, which was once an obedient tool of Soviet propaganda, is now in conflict with Moscow. Leaders of the WFTU have made it clear to Aleksandr Shelepin, the Kremlin's labor boss and international trouble shooter, that they could not engage in any meaningful action with Soviet trade unions as long as Russian troops remained on Czechoslovakia's soil.

Equally significant is the fact that the Communist parties of Italy, France and other European countries are still resisting the convocation by Moscow of an international Communist conference.

The conference was to have been held last November, but most of the world's leading Reds refused to go to Moscow after the rape of Czechoslovakia.

Now the Russians, after prolonged bargaining and elbow-twisting, have rescheduled the conference for next May. They may have to postpone it again if they fail to convince the Italians and French that Moscow has turned a new leaf in "fraternal Communist relations."

No doubt the Russians can always assemble in Moscow a "conference" of minuscule or client organizations, like the Communist Party of the United States. These would sign blindfolded any declaration written in the Kremlin against Moscow's main ideological enemies, Red China's "dogmatists" or Yugoslavia's President Tito. But such a "world conference" would indeed be a pyrrhic victory for the Russians.

Thus, the Soviet leaders' most pressing task in the coming months is to restore some semblance of unity in the Red world.

They must also put their own house in order since they are well aware that should the demand for greater freedom in Czechoslovakia and elsewhere in East Europe find an echo in Russia itself, the supremacy of the Communist party would be threatened.

The Russians need a breathing spell while they seek solutions to the urgent problems that rock international communism. It is now in their interest to resume discussions with the West, especially with the United States.

This means that in 1969 Moscow will pursue a more cautious policy in Europe and the Middle East.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Nose-Throat Specialist Best Bet in Sinusitis

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q — Can Argvrol be used safely for sinus trouble? If so, what per cent? How can a postnasal drip and bad breath due to sinus trouble be cured?

A — Mild silver protein (Argvrol) in 10 per cent solution is safe to use if it is not over four months old. Prolonged use may result in permanent silver deposits in the skin, giving the latter a grayish brown tinge.

Chronic sinusitis may be caused by excessive dryness of the indoor air, smog, heavy smoking, allergy of a chronic low-grade infection. To get rid of the symptoms, you must get rid of the cause. For this you should consult a nose and throat specialist.

Q — I am a man, 83, in good general health except that I cough a lot and bring up a lot of phlegm. Is there anything I can do for this condition?

A — A chronic cough may be caused by excessive smoking, tuberculosis, heavy atmospheric pollution, cancer of the respiratory tract, bronchitis or chronic congestion of the lungs due to a leaky heart valve. The first step toward appropriate treatment is to have your doctor determine the cause.

Q — How serious is a cystadenoma of the thyroid? Is it a form of cancer? What is the best treatment for it?

A — There are five different types of cystadenoma of the thyroid. Most of them are benign, but a few eventually become cancerous. If they are small and are shown by microscopic study to be benign no treatment is needed, but if their growth is rapid or if there is any question of their malignancy, they should be removed.

Q — I am a man, 47. For three years, when I walk one short block I get severe pains in the back of my legs. I have to stop for five minutes before I can go another block. My doctor says it is poor circulation but I've been taking circulation pills for three years and they have not helped me. What would you suggest?

A — The symptom you have described is called intermittent claudication. The most important part of the treatment is to give up tobacco in any form. Some victims of this disease have been helped by taking large doses of vitamin E. Others have reported improvement after taking niacin, papaverine or hexamethonium (all prescription drugs).

Today's hand would qualify as the worst hand of 1968 except for one thing. It was played in 1967!

West opened the king of spades against the three no-trump contract. East played the three and South the ace. South led the 10 of diamonds and went up with dummy's ace when West showed out. There was no point losing more than necessary so South cashed his five hearts and led the jack of clubs. West rose with the ace and returned a club, whereupon South made his contract instead of going down two.

While East and West were fighting about their failure to take their six top tricks, North tried to pour oil on troubled waters by pointing out that four hearts was a laydown and that maybe South should have found some way to show his good five card heart suit.

All this doesn't seem to be enough to qualify a hand for the worst of a year. Lots of people fail to set three no-trump contracts. The really bad feature did not come out until later on when the players looked over the scores.

The game was match point duplicate and not only did North and South receive a top score for making three no-trump, but they would have the same top score for going down two tricks at three no-trump. What's more they would still have a top if they had gone down two tricks doubled.

It seems that the next best North-South score was minus 790. North had opened his singleton trump against four spades doubled. South took his ace and led a second trump to hold West to his contract. At all other tables the contract was four or five spades doubled and a heart was opened, whereupon West would take 11 tricks to score either 990 or 850, depending on whether he was doubled at four or five.

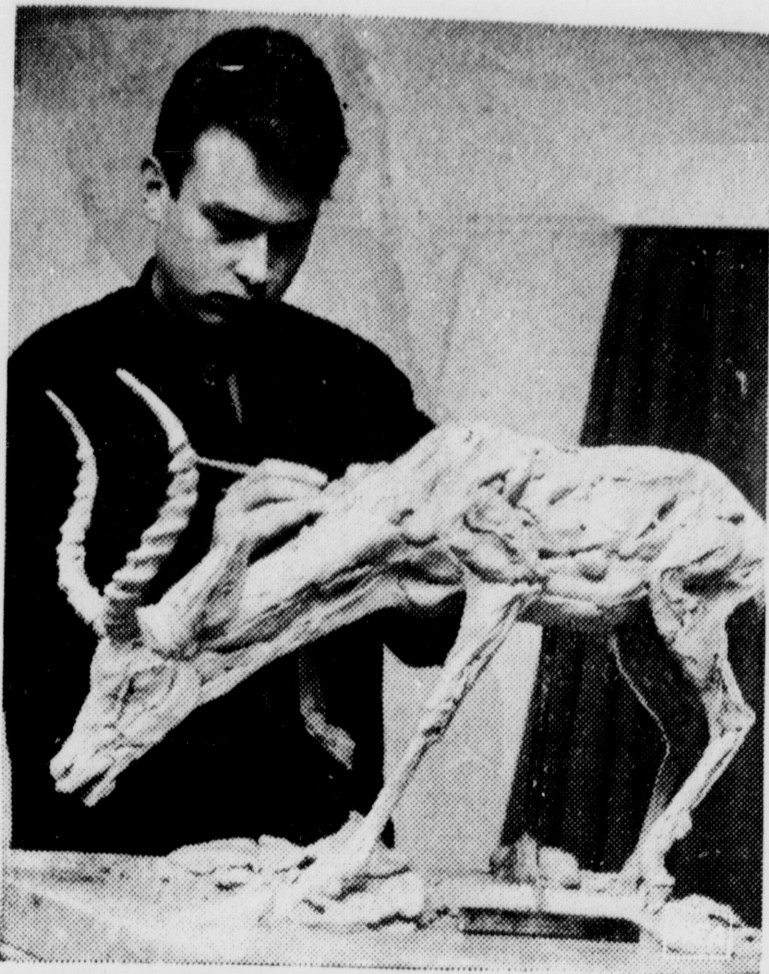

QUICK QUIZ

Q—How early did pews appear in churches?

A—Pews did not appear in churches until about the 13th century. In earlier days people stood or knelt for the various parts of a service of Christian worship. In Europe the Eastern Orthodox churches, in many instances, are not equipped with pews, but the people stand for the long liturgical service.

Q—What foreign capital is named for a U.S. president?

A—Monrovia, capital of Liberia, was named in honor of President James Monroe.

A WIDOW'S TRIBUTE. Jonathan Kenworthy in England works on a figure of an impala—a large African antelope—which will be cast in bronze and placed on grave of author Ernest Hemingway at Ketchum Cemetery in Idaho. The American Nobel Prize winner's widow commissioned the work after seeing a Kenworthy exhibition in New York.

Missouri Attracts Business

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—Industrial development in Missouri during 1968 saw 15 nationally known firms announcing plans to establish plants in the state.

Henry Maddox, director of the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, today cited two recent developments as pointing toward an even greater year in 1969.

Missouri is the first state in the nation to instigate a computerized industrial site selection system for locating industry, he said.

Missouri took another step toward attracting industry when the legislature passed laws enabling the first industrial development finance corporation to be formed, Maddox added.

The new corporation will assist in financing industrial ventures.

Among "name companies" announcing industrial plans in Missouri were:

Noranda Ltd. of Toronto, Canada, to build an aluminum plant in New Madrid at a cost of $185 million.

Uniroyal Inc., to build a $4.5 million industrial hose plant at Kennett.

Rowe Manufacturing Co., to build a facility at Poplar Bluff to manufacture furniture.

Harper and Row, a plant in Troy with an initial payroll estimated at $350,000.

The Fag Bearing Corp. of Schweinfurt, Germany, announced plans for its only U.S. factory. The plant will be established in Joplin. Fag is the second-largest manufacturer of bearings in the world.

The Williams Underwood Co. is building a plant in Hannibal, and Continental Homes Inc. is building a facility in Malden.

The Crane Co., a leading manufacturer of plumbing supplies, plans an operation in Nevada, and a division of the Wick Building System is building a plant in Chillicothe to manufacture mobile homes.

Neosho will get a new industrial plant. The La-Z-Boy Co. will build a facility there. It is expected to employ over 500 people.

A prime distributor of Pepsi Cola and other soft drinks for Missouri and Illinois will be established at Warrenton.

A new plant to serve as a division of Burroughs Business Forms will be built in Kirksville. The investment is expected to be over $4 million.

"The computer system, the new method of financing an industry, our natural attractiveness to industry due to unequal transportation and raw materials, plus the cooperative spirit of Missourians is enough to make the industrial world sit up and take notice," said Maddox.

"We look to 1969 as being one of our greatest years in acquiring new industry and assisting present industry to expand."

Seamstress, 81, Given Job For a Miss America

MORAN, Kan. (AP)—An 81-year-old Moran seamstress who has sewn for three generations of the Barnes family is making the wedding gown for Debra Dene Barnes, Miss America of 1968.

But despite the sewing she already has done for the family, Mrs. Edith Hurley says she was "surprised when Debbie asked me to make her wedding dress"—one of white skinner satin.

"Debbie's a wonderful girl," Mrs. Hurley said. "She's been all over the world. And she's worn gowns that cost thousands of dollars."

She said Miss Barnes told her she "wouldn't think of having anyone but me make it for her."

Miss Barnes and Mitchell Miles of Pittsburg, Kan., both students at Pittsburg State College, will be married at the Methodist Church in Moran, her hometown, Jan. 25.

Mrs. Hurley also displayed floor-length gowns of navy blue velvet for Debbie's attendants and said one of them will be for Barbara Barnes, the former Miss America's sister, who will be a bridesmaid.

Mrs. Hurley said Miss Barnes "bought 10 yards of white skinner satin—that's the best satin there is, you know. Oh, it's going to be a beautiful thing. Debbie's sewing the sequins on the lace yoke and this will be the fitted bodice," she said as she picked up a piece of white satin.

A widow 14 years, Mrs. Hurley has been sewing all her life and has never had a professional sewing lesson.

Mrs. Hurley has sewn for Debbie's mother, Mrs. Dwight O. Barnes, and she made the high school graduation dress for Debbie's grandmother, the late Mrs. Blanche Barnes.

When Miss Barnes was crowned Miss Kansas, she was wearing one of Mrs. Hurley's favorite creations, an off-white formal.

"That formal has been all over the country with Debbie," Mrs. Hurley said. "Debbie took it with her to Atlantic City, and on a trip to Texas after she became Miss America."

Gum-chewing Granny Disrupting Office outsiders come into the office and see this, they are often too shocked to speak.

This morning I was engrossed in some tedious tabulating and this nut yells, "Help!" I dropped everything and ran to her desk. Apparently one of her larger bubbles had burst. She had gun in her hair, on her glasses, in her beads and even on her earrings. The entire office was disrupted for 15 minutes trying to separate her from the gum with spot remover, ink eradicator and lighter fluid.

What can be done about this ridiculous situation? P.S. Her father owns this business. —J.L.K.

Dear J.L.K.: Thanks for the P.S. I would say you also are stuck.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the mother of a normal, healthy, happy, well-adjusted little girl. Lorraine is three years old and as pretty as a picture.

The problem is that whenever I ask her to do something she doesn't want to do, such as take a nap or put her toys away, she becomes very angry and inflicts pain on herself.

This child has banged her head against the floor, bitten herself until her lip bled, and pulled chunks of hair out of her head. Yesterday I left her with a sitter because I had to go see my mother in the hospital. Lorraine scratched her face with a barrette until the blood ran.

Shall I spank her or ignore her? Please advise me. —SAN JUAN, PUERTO RICO

Dear San Juan: Your opening sentence contradicts the rest of your letter. A child who bangs her head on the floor, bites her lips till they bleed and pulls chunks of hair out of her head is neither well-adjusted nor happy. She is frustrated, angry, anxious and perhaps emotionally disturbed. Punishment is not the answer. This little girl should be evaluated by a doctor. Ask your pediatrician to direct you.

Confidential to Sock It To Me: You are wasting your time and money. Any similarity between love and what goes on between you two is strictly miraculous. Love means confidence, trust and sharing. Your relationship is nowhere.

Confidential to Disappointed In You: Sorry, but I can't print every letter. If you really want help and not just an opportunity to use this column as a family bulletin board, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and you'll receive a personal reply.

Sports: an Area of Agreement

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Interest in sports runs high in South Africa, and the man in the street has been disappointed recently to find that politics and sports mix in about the same manner as oil and water.

Political waves churned up by apartheid swamped several events, and national pride was badly bruised.

There are other problems being kicked around among whites when they gather in the warm southern hemisphere evenings for the bresivleis, or barbecue.

The cost of living is creeping up. Black servants have trouble with the authorities over work-residence permits. Traffic jams seem worse than ever. University students promise more protests in 1969. Africans and Asians in the United Nations are denouncing South Africa again. Expert auto mechanics are hard to find. And if only the Americans would agree to increase the pegged price of gold—South Africa's most important product.

But sports are something special.

Swimmer Karen Muir and sprinter Paul Nash equaled or broke world records in 1968. Political meddling banned South Africa from the Mexico Olympic Games and kept Muir and Nash from demonstrating their prowess, say the fans.

South Africa was about to show the world what top-class cricket was when politicians canceled a tour here by Britain because a nonwhite named Basil D'Oliveira was added to the visiting team.

Communist politicians have been trying for six years to get South Africa tossed out of the International Tennis Federation.

South Africa's galaxy of modern heroes was peopled mostly by athletes until the world's first human heart transplant was performed in Cape Town by Dr. Christiaan Barnard.

The handsome doctor's surgical skill, lively personality and highly publicized appearances overseas are much admired by his countrymen.

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. Alexis Johnson, ambassador to Japan and former deputy ambassador to Saigon, is reported to be in line for the State Department's No. 3 post.

Informed sources say Johnson will be named undersecretary for political affairs Saturday.

Others reportedly due to be appointed at the same time are Massachusetts Atty. Gen. Elliott Richardson, heir to the No. 2 post as undersecretary; William R. Macomber, assistant secretary for congressional relations, who's expected to be retained; and Richard F. Pederson, an 18-year foreign service officer expected to become the department's executive secretary and counselor.

More appointments—including the new chief negotiator in Paris—are to be made later, after Secretary-designate William P. Rogers screens candidates.

Pooling County Resources Is Object of First Grant

WASHINGTON (AP)—Missouri is the recipient of the first grant under a federal program designed to encourage counties in rural areas to pool their resources. The amount of the grant is $20,213.

The money is to be used to develop the four-county Ozark Gateway district in southwestern Missouri. The counties are Barton, Jasper, Newton and McDonald, with Joplin as the main urban center.

The sum is to cover two-thirds of the cost of a two-year comprehensive planning program. The estimated total cost of the project is $157,500.

Initial projects will include studies of the geography, history, economy, population and community facilities, including housing, in the area.

The program was announced by Robert C. Wood, acting secretary of the Department of

Who are the South Africans and how did they get this way?

Tucked away on the southern tip of Africa, this republic is at the same time obscure and important, wealthy and worried, aggressive and uncertain, racially divided and peaceful.

South Africa is a land rich in minerals, about the size of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Most of inland South Africa is dry plateau more than 4,000 feet above sea level. Rugged escarpments drop to the Indian Ocean on the east and the South Atlantic on the west.

It was discovered by Portuguese explorers in 1488 and first settled by the Dutch about the same time as the first European settlements in the United States.

Many whites now explain their right to the country—blacks outnumber them 4 to 1—by pointing out that there was no tribal opposition to the pioneers until they had trekked by ox wagon hundreds of miles into the uninhabited interior. Only then did the Boer settlers of Dutch, German and French descent, clash with blacks moving down from Central Africa.

Two rural republics were established in what are now the Orange Free State and Transvaal provinces. The present Natal and Cape provinces remained in British hands and the stage was set for South Africa's equivalent of the American Civil War.

The discovery of diamonds and gold in Boer territory attracted thousands who wanted to get rich quick. Friction between the weak Boer republics and such British figures as Cecil Rhodes sparked the Boer War of 1899-1902.

The resourceful Boers introduced the commando to modern warfare but were worn down to defeat. The conflict left a residue of mistrust which, in part, explains modern South Africa's split national personality.

Present-day Afrikaners are descendants of the Boers who lost to the British. They had little left after the war but their farms, their unique language and a fundamentalist faith in the Old Testament.

Exchange By Arabs Possible

ATHENS (AP)—There was speculation in Athens today that the Egyptian government might offer to exchange the Greek who hijacked a Greek airliner for the two Arab terrorists who shot up an Israeli airliner at Athens airport.

The plane and 102 of the persons aboard it returned safely to Athens Thursday, but Egyptian authorities were holding the hijacker in Cairo. A government source said the Greek Embassy in Cairo was being kept informed of his interrogation.

There is no extradition treaty between Greece and Egypt, and it was not known if Greece would make an official request for the man's return. The two Arabs who shot up the El Al airliner last week, killing an Israeli passenger, are held in Athens on a variety of charges including homicide.

The Olympic Airways DC6 was diverted over the eastern Mediterranean Thursday by a gunman who fired a warning shot through a cockpit window and ordered the pilot to fly to Cairo.

Olympic Airways, owned by Aristotle Onassis, sent a jetliner to pick up the 97 other passengers, who included seven Americans. The plane window was repaired, and after refueling the crew flew the aircraft to Athens Thursday night.

The Greek government said the hijacker was George Flammourides, 30, a former army deserter from Crete who was jailed in 1967 for disobedience and insubordination. He was freed by a 1968 New Year's amnesty.

Egyptian authorities said Flammourides told them he diverted the plane to Cairo because he had been "hounded and persecuted" as an opponent of the military regime in Greece.

The railroad went to court and won a new trial. Thursday it was ordered by a jury to pay Ruckman $266,237 damages.

Favor 'Hawks to Capture Third Title Despite Loss

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas, which in a month must learn to do without floor leader Jo Jo White, opens its Big Eight Conference basketball season Saturday afternoon at Lincoln against Nebraska in a game that will be regionally televised at 2 p.m.

The fifth-ranked Jayhawks are favorites to capture their third Big Eight title in four years despite the fact White's eligibility expires at the end of this semester.

Other Big Eight opens Saturday night have strong-looking Colorado at Oklahoma, defending champion Kansas State at Iowa State and darkhorse Missouri at puzzling Oklahoma State.

"It's a big order," Kansas Coach Ted Owens says of the Jayhawks' league debut. "Getting a good start is vital."

Kansas, winner of 11 of 12 games in the "other half" of its season—the non-conference schedule—treads warily into Lincoln in spite of the fact the Jayhawks crushed Nebraska 82-56 in sweeping rather handily to the Big Eight pre-season tournament title here a week ago.

"Nebraska poses a lot of problems, especially at Lincoln," Owens said. "We played our best game of the year in beating Nebraska in the tournament, and it will take something like that just to win at Lincoln."

The Cornhuskers tried slow-down tactics on Kansas in the Big Eight tournament, and the gamble blew up in Coach Joe Cipriano's face. Kansas roared away to a 21-7 lead as White and Bruce Sloan ripped Nebraska's stall apart with their ball-hawking.

White is averaging 18.2 points a game and sophomore Dave Robisch has contributed 17.9. Nebraska, now 7-5, is getting 14.7 from Marvin Stewart.

Colorado sends the Big Eight's leading scorer and best 1-2 scoring punch in the conference against Oklahoma, which is still trying to get itself organized. The Buffaloes, now 10-2 after losing 60-55 to Kansas in the tournament, have Cliff Meely with a 21.8-point average and Ron Smith with a 14.2 average. Meely also is third in the Big Eight in rebounding with a 10.3 average.

Kansas State, which was hampered in the tournament by a virus which cost the Wildcats the services of three starters much of the time, appear to have the talent to give anybody trouble if all hands are healthy. Gene Williams, brawny 6-6 forward, leads the Cats with a 13.5-point average and tops the conference in rebounding with an average of 12.1 grabs a game. Bill Cain of Iowa State is second in scoring with a 20.7 average and rebounding with an 11.0 average.

Missouri and Oklahoma State both have 7-4 records. The surprising Tigers have good scoring punch in Don Tomlinson, with a 16.9 average, and Dave Pike, 15.0, but lack rebounding power. OSU has a sparkling sophomore in Amos Thomas, who is averaging 18.2 points a game, and a lot of experience. But the Cowboys still are making too many mistakes to win at Coach Henry Iba's controlled-offense game.

Says Kansas Had Twelve On Field Several Times

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — An assistant football coach for Kansas was quoted today as saying he believes the Jayhawks had 12 men on the field for three plays in addition to the one that cost them a 15-14 Orange Bowl defeat by Penn State.

Dave McLain, linebacking coach, was quoted by sportswriter Charlie Smith in today's edition of the Topeka Daily Capital. McLain said he reached his conclusion after watching a video tape replay of the game.

"It's no wonder we were able to stop them for two plays," McLain said. "That 6-3 defense is pretty tough to run against."

Kansas appeared to have the game won, 14-13, when a two-point conversion attempt by Penn State failed. But Kansas was penalized for having 12 men on the field. Penn State tried again with 15 seconds left. Halfback Bob Campbell of the Nittany Lions slashed into the end zone for two points and the victory.

McLain said this is what happened before the conversion: Tackles Jim Bailey and Orville Turgeon were sent into the game for Kansas following a 47-yard pass to the three-yard line that set up the touchdown. They were supposed to replace safety Tommy Anderson and linebackers Rick Abernathy.

Anderson left the field. Abernathy did not.

Penn State ran two plays. Then quarterback Chuck Burkhardt skirted end for the touchdown. Counting the touchdown play and the unsuccessful conversion attempt, that made four plays.

The penalty moved the ball from the three to the one and a half yard line. Then Abernathy left the game.

McLain said, "When you go into the game, you're liable to yell 'Abernathy out' from 10 yards away and maybe he didn't later." Abernathy said later:

"We were in a defense which calls for three linebackers. I counted three heads and decided I was going to stay. Nobody tapped me to come out. How can you live something like this down? You feel embarrassed. You feel responsible. You don't care what the people in the stands think. You care about what the players think. That's the hardest thing."

Boys Club Cage League Begins Play

The Boys Club Basketball League will begin play Saturday at 1 p.m. at the Agriculture Building on the Missouri State Fairgrounds as the Sioux take the court against the Johawks in the Warrior League.

Six games will be played throughout the afternoon.

Any boys who have not signed up and wish to play may come out to the Agriculture building at 1 p.m. Saturday. Some openings exist, although many teams have completed their rosters.

Good Players Gratifying To Coaches

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — "The most gratifying thing about coaching is developing players who later succeed as collegians or pros and make you feel you had a part in framing their lives."

With that comment, Frank Camp closed out a 23-year career as head football coach at the University of Louisville. In his announcement Thursday, Camp said the decision was reached after lengthy discussions with his physician.

Camp, 62, has shaped a number of lives at the university. His former players could form the nucleus of a National Football League all-star team.

Among them are Johnny Unitas and Lenny Lyles of the Baltimore Colts, Doug Buffone of the Chicago Bears, Ernie Green of the Cleveland Browns, and Ken Kortas of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

During his tenure, Camp's teams won 118 games, lost 96 and had two ties. Often, the university's football program was hard-pressed for funds, and several times the school considered dropping the sport.

Roadrunners To Meet CMSC Junior Varsity

Despite their impressive record, the State Fair Community College Roadrunners probably aren't overly exuberant about their game against the Central Missouri State junior varsity Monday.

Since the schedule was first set, things have changed — probably for the worse, if the Roadrunners' chances for victory are given serious consideration.

Originally set to play at home Tuesday, the Roadrunners now have to take their 6-1 season record to Warrensburg a day early.

The Roadrunners might have had a better chance at home, but work is being done to make the Agriculture Building at the fairgrounds here more suitable for sports. The work isn't complete, so the schedule had to be revised.

The SFCC team's last road game ended in defeat. Going ten miles farther west might just make things rougher for the Roadrunners because Coach Fred Wehking's crew is going up against some tough, experienced cagers Monday.

Among others, the Roadrunners will face 6-9 John Luscombe, a CMS sophomore center, and Tom Morgan, 6-7, a freshman also playing at center.

Both men are potential threats, as is the rest of the CMS team. Five Warrensburg men are sophomores, while SFCC takes only one sophomore into the contest — Bob Scrivner, a 6-3 forward who doubles at center.

The Roadrunners aren't necessarily headed for certain defeat, but things might have been a bit easier at home. SFCC has a spunky, hard-driving team that can provide plenty of surprises. But it's going to be all up-hill this time.

The Roadrunners meet CMS in a 5 p.m. contest which will be a preliminary for a clash between the CMS varsity Mules and Rolla.

Examiner Track Meet Saturday

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—What do you do if you're a track athlete who has advanced his event to the year 2,001? If you're Bob Beamon, you try for about 2,069.

When Beamon long jumped 25 feet, 2½ inches at the Olympic Games in Mexico City in October, he broke the world record by nearly two feet, a performance considered the greatest in the history of track and field by those who measure such things.

At the time, it was said that the lithe, 22-year-old athlete had set the event ahead by a generation, that probably no one would jump that far again for years, but Beamon disagrees.

"I think I can do it again," he said Thursday as he arrived here for the Examiner All-American Games indoor track and field meet Saturday.

"I thought I could be better. I would like to go about 30 or 31 feet."

Right now, though, he is more interested in pushing his world indoor record of 27-2½ beyond the 28-foot limit.

Beamon said he has not done any training for the long jump since the Olympics, but has played some basketball and may join the Texas-El Paso team for a few games when he enrolls there again later this month.

Beamon said he felt bad about not being nominated for the Sullivan Award, which is annually given by the Amateur Athletic Union to the top amateur athlete of the year.

Committees of the AAU nominate three athletes from various sections of the country and newsmen vote on the final winner on the basis of performance and sportsmanship.

Surprise was expressed in some quarters when Beamon, world and Olympic champions Lee Evans and Tommie Smith and football star O.J. Simpson were not nominated.

In New York, Olan Cassell, the AAU's director of track and field, said a mistake had been made and that Beamon "definitely was nominated for 1968. I don't know where he got the idea he hadn't been nominated."

"I don't think the ballots have even gone out yet. But if his name isn't on them, it's a printer's error."

However, several sports writers across the country reported receiving ballots and accompanying biographical notes on the nominees Thursday. Beamon's name did not appear on either.

Bruins In Tie With Montreal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Boston's boisterous Bruins have moved into a first place tie with Montreal in the National Hockey League's East Division.

The Bruins muscled their way past New York 4-2 Thursday night while Pittsburgh was stunning the Canadiens 5-2. In the only other game played, Philadelphia tied Chicago 2-2.

Defenseman Bobby Orr sparked the Bruins, scoring one goal, assisting on another and breaking up Ranger plays all night. Orr's unassisted goal with 10 seconds gone in the third period sealed New York's fate.

Earlier, the 20-year-old star had assisted on a goal by Derek Sanderson. Ed Westfall, who scored while killing a penalty, and Ron Murphy got the other Boston goals while Reg Fleming and Vic Hadfield hit for New York.

It was a rough game with referee Bill Friday calling 22 penalties including one major. The Bruins were on the giving and the Rangers on the receiving end of most of the hitting.

Boston got a needed assist from Pittsburgh to climb into the first place deadlock with the Canadiens. The Penguins bunched three early goals by Wally Boyer, Bob Woytowich and Ken Schinkel and made the margin stand up.

Bill Harris and rookie Jean Pronovost scored Pittsburgh's other goals while J. C. Tremblay and Dick Duff hit for the Canadiens. It was the first time expansionist Pittsburgh ever beat Montreal.

Jim Johnson's 45-foot goal in the third period earned Philadelphia its tie with Chicago and goalie Doug Favell protected the deadlock with three late saves against Bobby Hull, the NHL's scoring leader.

Hull scored his 25th goal of the year and assisted on a score by Chico Maki to take a two-point lead over idle Gordie Howe in the scoring race. Brit Selby scored the Flyers' first goal, just 21 seconds after Maki had hit in the first period.

Chicago Bulls In Deep Freeze

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The temperature was supposed to drop to 65 degrees below zero in Alaska today, but it couldn't be any colder than the Chicago Bulls, found frozen in the field by the Atlanta Hawks.

The Bulls started Thursday with a hot, for them, three-game winning streak and held a 63-50 lead over the even hotter Hawks and their 10-game victory string in the third period when the temperature dropped.

Chicago went nine minutes and 40 seconds into the final period before hitting its first shot from the field in the quarter after missing 17 in a row. By then, Atlanta held a 98-78 lead and breezed to a 106-88 victory for No. 11.

Cincinnati dissipated a 20-point lead against Milwaukee at Madison, Wis., before coming back for a 113-109 decision over the Bucks, and Boston turned back San Diego 107-95 in the only other National Basketball Association games.

In the American Basketball Association, Miami beat Kentucky 110-106, Denver clobbered Houston 120-102 and New Orleans edged Los Angeles 112-111 in overtime.

Atlanta helped put the Bulls in deep freeze with a tight man-to-man defense, and Chicago managed only five baskets in the last 19 minutes, scoring only 14 points in the final quarter.

Walt Hazzard led Atlanta with 19 points while Bob Boozer had 27 for Chicago, but only nine in the last half and none in the final stanza.

Cincinnati jumped to an 85-65 lead before the Bucks came back and took a 102-101 lead with three minutes left. Jerry Lucas' jump finally put the Royals ahead to stay at 105-104 and Oscar Robertson scored Cincinnati's last eight points for a total of 25. Teammate Tom Van Arsdale had 28.

Boston had six men in double figures to offset a 32-point showing by San Diego's Elvin Hayes. John Havlicek and Tom Sanders led the way with 23 each.

Havlicek came off the bench in the final period to spark a Celtic rally in which Boston outscored the Rockets 9-2 for an 86-85 lead with 7:15 to play. The Celtics had led by 13 points at halftime, but the Rockets rallied to go ahead 75-74 in the final minute of the third quarter.

Rockets In Hailing Distance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Denver Rockets continue to stay within hailing distance of Oakland in the American Basketball Association's Western Division race.

The Rockets downed hapless Houston 120-102 Thursday night and sliced idle Oakland's lead to 7½ games. In other action, Miami beat Kentucky 110-106 and New Orleans nipped Los Angeles 112-111 in overtime.

In the National Basketball Association, Atlanta topped Chicago 106-88, Boston defeated San Diego 107-95 and Cincinnati outlasted Milwaukee 113-109.

Jeff Congdon, a substitute, ignited the fourth-quarter rally that sent Denver to its 14th victory in 16 home games. The former Brigham Young star hit a field goal and then stole the ball and made a perfect pass for another basket that shook the Rockets loose from an 83-83 tie.

Willie Murrell scored 23 of his 29 points in the second half as Miami rallied to beat Kentucky and move into a virtual tie with the Colonels for second place in the Eastern Division. Kentucky's Darel Carrier took scoring honors with 30 points but the Colonels had only eight men in uniform and had to play cautiously.

New Orleans rebounded from an eight-point halftime deficit to edge Los Angeles. Jimmy Jones tied it in regulation time at 98-all with two free throws and Mike Butler's made two more in overtime to cement the triumph.

Butler's pair gave the Bucs a four-point lead with seconds to go and offset a three-point field goal by LA's Larry Miller.

The Boys Club Basketball League will begin play Saturday at 1 p.m. at the Agriculture Building on the Missouri State Fairgrounds as the Sioux take the court against the Johawks in the Warrior League.

Six games will be played throughout the afternoon.

Any boys who have not signed up and wish to play may come out to the Agriculture building at 1 p.m. Saturday. Some openings exist, although many teams have completed their rosters.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Suggests Greater Care For Safety of Baby

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I just read a reader's suggestion for pinning a baby's pacifier, with a ribbon through the handle, to the baby clothing. I advise against this as I think baby could choke to death. I recently read of such a case—baby was found dead in bed with the pacifier string wrapped around his neck. Usually the column gives me pleasure but not this one. I also want to warn mothers of the danger of putting baby to bed with a bib tied around his neck. This could get twisted or caught.—MRS. D. M.

DEAR MRS. D. M.—Thank you for your warning as we all like to exercise every care with baby. Our reader, Sharon, suggested this, especially when taking baby out and the pacifier might drop on the floor. A ribbon pinned to the front of a garment should not be long enough to go around baby's neck and only reach to the mouth but mothers will do well to heed your letter and NEVER do this or put it on a ribbon around the neck when baby is in his crib. ONLY when taking him out and when he will be under close supervision.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I am a Pointer fan who needs some Pointers on the easiest way to apply decorator burlap to wallpapered walls. I am sure some of the girls have done this and I hope to benefit from their experience.—MRS. J. Q.

DEAR POLLY—I hope my remedy will help Majorette remove the rust her baton left on her white uniform. Make a paste of table salt and lemon juice and rub on the stain. Use the lemon skin for rubbing it in. Place garment in the sun and the rust will vanish. I have used this many times. Of course, this mixture must be rinsed out, and then the garment washed or dry cleaned.—MRS. G. J. M., Jr.

DEAR POLLY—I use a wash cloth sprinkled with scouring powder to wash the ball and tip to my baton. Rinse and wipe dry with a towel. All I ever do to the shaft is to rub it with a towel.—LAURIE

Williams Can Pass— No Bones About It

By LEE MUELLER
NEA Sports Writer

NEW YORK—(N E A)—This is not a story about grim dedication to a purpose, sweat, sacrifice and finally success. Not at all. Shucks, Hambone Williams never sweated anything—not much anyway.

Growing up around San Diego, he acquired a reputation as a pretty loosey-goosey guy—hence the nickname Hambone, or, as close friends call him, Bones.

Two years ago, Art (Bones) Williams, etc.) was earning about $100 a week working at the Conair shipping department in San Diego. He was 27 years old, married and going nowhere at an incredible speed.

These days, however, Williams plays guard for the San Diego Rockets. Coach Jack McMahon thinks he may be the best passer in the National Basketball Association, if not the world. Now Bones Williams makes considerably more than $100 a week.

The events that transpired to bring Art Williams to the threshold of stardom in the NBA are slightly confused in everyone's mind except Hambone's. It has all been very clear to him.

After graduating from high school, Williams spent one year at California Poly (Pomona), then quit and got married. The next four or five years were filled with idle admiration of Oscar Robertson and Wilt Chamberlain and work at various factories. The closest he came to the NBA were day-dreams.

Night brought temporary relief. He played basketball

Hambone Williams
... he just dropped in for a factory team and an occasional AAU outfit. He was comfortable then, he said, because it felt natural.

Two years ago, former NBA great Arnie Risen—who had known Williams about 10 years—wrote Bones a note, asking him to come down to San Diego's rookie camp and try out. Bones had no second thoughts as he packed his toothbrush and sneakers.

"I was pretty confident," Williams recalled. "I'd watched the other guys play and I thought I could make it. Basketball just comes natural to me. I guess."

McMahon still laughs about it.

"He just dropped into camp," McMahon said. "It was our lucky day. I guess. It's hard to find guys like that. He can make the pass and he breaks down the press. His shooting's improved, too."

Williams, a lithe 6-foot-1, 185-pounder, now starts on a team that promises to challenge the NBA's Western Division leaders rather firmly. A fellow named Elvin Hayes is one reason. Williams is another.

"I only do as the coach says," Bones says, grinning at McMahon nearby. "He says don't put the ball down, hit the open man."

Although he still lacks Robertson's shooting touch, Williams' ball handling is particularly reminiscent of the Big O's. "I've never tried to copy any one player," Bones says, "although I always liked the way 'O' played."

Williams runs constantly. "I very seldom get tired," he says. "I like to play and I like to run. I figure if I can get my guy tired enough, I'll get myself a layup. I gamble a lot. With 'E' out there, I can go all out for the ball and not worry."

Bones, in fact, doesn't worry much about anything these days. He's playing basketball, he says. What could be more natural?

Louisville Invades Tulsa In Early Test of Strength

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Was Louisville Coach John Dromo crying wolf when he forecast dire things this basketball season for his defending Missouri Valley champions, or are the Cardinals off to a spectacular start largely because of a favorable home schedule.

The rest of the Missouri Valley may learn the answer Saturday night when Louisville invades Tulsa for an early test of strength between the two conference leaders.

Louisville stormed to its ninth straight victory of the season and a 3-0 Valley record by crushing Wichita State, 71-58, Thursday night. The game was at Louisville as have been eight out of their nine games this year.

Tulsa, 9-2 and looking more like a real contender, knocked off 10th-ranked Cincinnati, 57-50, at Tulsa for a 2-0 Valley mark. That left Cincinnati 1-1 in the conference and 7-2 overall.

In a third conference game, Drake edged Memphis State, 72-71, at Memphis. Drake now stands 9-1 for the season.

Bradley buried North Dakota, 109-77, in a non-conference game.

Valley teams are idle tonight. Saturday night, St. Louis is at Drake. Memphis at North Texas and Cincinnati at Wichita in addition to the Louisville-Tulsa battle.

Butch Beard, Louisville's 6-foot-3 guard, drilled 12 of 24 field goals and 3 of 4 free throws for 27 points. He took a 25-point average into the game. Ron Washington got 15 points and Ron Mendell 14 for Wichita, 1-0 in the Valley and 3-0 overall.

Wichita trailed only 29-28 at the half, but could hit only three field goals in the first 12 minutes of the second half to fall out of contention.

Cincinnati, in front 35-38 at halftime, scored only 12 points the second half—once going 7-2 minutes without a point. Tulsa outscored Cincinnati 15-5 in the first 10 minutes of the second half to go ahead 43-44 and stayed there.

Bobby Smith led the Hurricanes with 21 points. Jim Ard managed 16 for Cincinnati.

Drake held off Memphis to pick up an important road triumph. Joe Proctor's 30-foot shot at the buzzer for Memphis missed, or the game would have gone into overtime. Willie McCarter's field goal with 42 seconds left put Drake ahead 72-71, and Dolph Pulliam's free throw at :09 guaranteed the Bulldogs a tie. Rich Jones rang up 33 points for Memphis, while Willie Wise was high for Drake with 19 and McCarter got 12.

L. C. Rowen and Ste Kuberski, who give Bradley the top 1-2 scoring punch in the Valley, had 55 points between them in the Braves' romp. Rowen got 35 and now is averaging 26.4 in 11 games, while Kuberski drilled 21 and owns a 23.1 average. Bradley is 7-4 for the season.

Expectations In Runner-Up Grid Playoff

MIAMI (AP)—Dallas Coach Tom Landry isn't sure what to expect from his Cowboys Sunday when they meet the Minnesota Vikings in the annual runner-up playoff of the National Football League.

Landry is just as curious as many people to see how his players react after their crushing defeat by Cleveland in the Eastern Conference championship game two weeks ago. The favored Cowboys bowed out of the championship picture 31-20.

Landry said he had no doubts that his fine team would recover from the bruised ego suffered in the Cleveland game. "We'll recover in time. You have to recover in this business. It's really hard to say how the players feel. They seem in good spirits, which probably is a good sign they'll play well."

The Vikings, winners of the Central Division, also are playing and working. Coach Bud Grant, however, expressed confidence his team would play well Sunday. They played well in losing the Western title to Baltimore 24-14.

"I know we're not going to be flat," said Grant. "There is far too much pride among the players to let themselves get down. They're too smart to let that happen."

Baltimore Has Three On All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP)—The Baltimore Bullets, now leading the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Association after finishing at the bottom last season, have placed the maximum three players on the division's team for the All-Star Game at Baltimore Jan. 14.

Forward Gus Johnson of the Bullets, center-forward Willis Reed of the New York Knicks, and guards Hal Greer of Philadelphia and Jon McGlocklin of Milwaukee, were named to the All-Star team today.

They were the selections of the coaches. The first eight players of the 12-man squad were picked by sports writers and sportscasters in the franchise cities.

The last four players for the West's squad will be announced Saturday night.

Originally picked for the East were guard Earl Monroe and center Wes Unseld of Baltimore, forward Jerry Lucas and guard Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati, forward John Havlicek and center Bill Russell of Boston, guard Dave Bing of Detroit and forward Bill Cunningham of Philadelphia.

Unseld, a rookie, and Monroe, McGlocklin and Cunningham will play in the All-Star Game for the first time.

The East will be coached by Baltimore's Gene Shue. His starting team, on the basis of the voting, will be Lucas, Havlicek, Russell, Monroe and Robertson.

It will be the ninth consecutive All-Star Game for Greer, the Most Valuable Player in the East's 144-121 victory last year.

Four-Year-Olds Set for Race On Saturday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
As many as 18 4-year-olds may go to the post Saturday to try and join some illustrious predecessors as winners of the $40,000-added Malibu Stakes at Santa Anita.

The seven-furlong race has been won the past two times by the reigning Horse of the Year—Buckpasser in 1967 and Damascus a year ago.

Dr. Fager, 1968's top thoroughbred, will not be in the field, but several prominent 3-year-olds of last year will. They include William Haggin's Perry Dewan, W.R. Haw's Poleax and Mrs. Montgomery Fisher's Proper Proof.

Other probable starters include Brunswick Farm's Te Vega, Frank McMahon's Baffle and Mrs. Connie M. Ring's Broad Shadows.

Sports In Brief

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hockey
PITTSBURGH—The Pittsburgh Penguins of the National League recalled right wing Wayne Hicks from Baltimore of the American League.

ST. LOUIS—The St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League recalled defenseman Ray Fortin from Kansas City of the Central League.

A Wide Variety of Backgrounds For the 15 New U.S. Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — He's 47, a lawyer with at least six years experience in politics, is married and has three children, served in World War II and last November won a hard, close fight.

He has little reputation nationally. His political beliefs tend to be moderate.

Who is he? The newest member of what often is called the world's most exclusive club—the U.S. Senate.

This is a composite picture of the 15-member Class of '69 that is sworn in today. Here is a breakdown on the individuals:

William B. Saxbe, a long-shot last spring when he agreed to run for the seat held by the veteran Democrat Frank J. Lausche, is 52, and had been Ohio's Republican attorney general since 1963.

Lausche lost in the Democratic primary to former Rep. John J. Gilligan, and Saxbe beat Gilligan in November.

Elected a member of the Ohio General Assembly in 1946, Saxbe was speaker in 1947-48. The Saxbes have three children.

Former Rep. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., defeated Democrat Joseph S. Clark, a two-term thrice-married, 66-year-old Senate dove whom Schweiker termed a "drawing room liberal."

Schweiker, 42, a four-term liberal-moderate is married and the father of four children. He's a businessman, a Navy veteran and 1950 Phi Beta Kappa graduate.

Alan M. Cranston, 54, leaves a Los Angeles real estate and investment business to become California's new Democratic senator.

A foreign news correspondent in the 1930's, he wrote and published an anti-Nazi version of Mein Kampf that sold 500,000 copies in the United States. He was an Army private during World War II.

In 1958, he was the first Democrat elected Controller of California in 72 years. In 1964, he was beaten by Pierre Salinger, former White House press secretary, for the California Democratic senatorial nomination. He and his wife have two sons.

Maryland Republican Charles W. Mathias, moved his office Thursday across the Capitol Plaza from the House to the Senate side.

Mathias, 46, defeated Democrat Sen. Daniel B. Brewster, 45, in November. He is often called a liberal or moderate and is considered an excellent compromiser in such controversies as open housing. He was recognized in the House for his work on civil rights legislation and anticrime bills.

The First Automat Is Closed

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — America's first Automat, which served breakfast, lunch, dinner and a mess of nickel coffee breaks to some 50 million customers in 66 years, is a victim of modern times.

Horn and Hardart Baking Co. opened the original coin-operated restaurant in 1902 to provide clean and fast food service. It folded last weekend because it was a museum piece, inefficient and slow, in a computerized world.

"We took this step most reluctantly from the standpoint of nostalgia," said Nelson G. Harris, the new H&H president. "We have to be realistic. The Automat in its existing form meets the requirements of this space age about as well as a Model T alongside the Apollo 8."

At the peak of its popularity, before and after World War II, the business, founded in 1888 by Joseph V. Horn and Frank Hardart operated 32 Automats. Now there are two left in Philadelphia, and eight in New York City.

"They are not really automatic," said Harris. "And definitely uneconomical to maintain and staff."

Fresh food must be placed into the slotted compartments by people behind the equipment. Customers open the glass display doors to get at the items they want by dropping in coins and twisting knobs.

The original Automat, its mechanical equipment imported from Germany, was a tourist attraction, situated as it was two blocks from historic Independence Hall.

It was used years ago as a setting for movies. Songs were written about it, and it was the butt of many jokes.

Comedian Jimmy Durante got big laughs when he said, "I put a slug in a slot at the Automat and what do you think came out?—the manager."

He is married and has two sons.

Edward J. Gurney, who will be 55 Jan. 12, is Florida's first Republican senator since Reconstruction. A Maine-born conservative he won the Senate seat vacated by Democrat George A. Smathers with a big-margin victory over Democrat LeRoy Collins, former governor. Gurney served in the Army during World War II, was wounded and won the Silver Star.

An attorney and graduate of Harvard and Duke University law schools, Gurney became mayor of Winter Park, Fla., in 1961. He served three terms in the House of Representatives 1963-68. Gurney and his wife, Natalie Ahlborn Gurney, have two children.

James B. Allen, 56-year-old attorney and Democrat, takes the Senate seat from Alabama held by Democrat Lister Hill, who did not seek re-election. Allen whipped Republican Perry O. Hooper in November. Allen was twice lieutenant governor of Alabama and served in both the Alabama House and Senate. He was a strong supporter of former Gov. George Wallace.

Marlow Webster Cook, a Kentucky judge for the last eight years, succeeds Republican Thruston Morton of Kentucky, who did not seek re-election. Republican Cook, 42, served in the Kentucky House of Representatives for two terms. He is married and has four daughters and a son.

After being elected to the Senate in 1952, Goldwater steadily built a reputation as a spokesman for conservatives in the Republican party. He vacated his Senate seat to run for the presidency, losing a landslide decision to President Johnson.

He was an executive in the family's department store business before jumping into politics.

Iowa Democrat Harold Hughes, is a one time truck driver who licked a drinking problem.

After Army Service in World War II, Hughes became manager of an Iowa truck line, rose to lead trucking associations, formed his own Insurance and real estate business, became a member of the Iowa Commerce Commission and was elected the state's governor in 1962. His rise involved a switch of parties. He was once an active Republican.

Alaska Democrat Mike Gravel won a general election faceoff with the man he replaces, Democrat Ernest Gruening, and a determined Republican nominee, Elmer Rasmuson.

Gruening, 81, lost the primary to Gravel, 38-year-old Anchorage businessman, then lost a write-in campaign.

Gravel, a native of Springfield, Mass., is in the real estate business at Anchorage. He is a former speaker of the Alaska House. He and his wife, Rita, have two children.

Theodore F. Stevens was appointed Alaska's Republican Senator by Gov. Walter J. Hickel following the death of the late Democrat E. L. Bartlett. He will serve two years, until a general election.

Stevens, 45-year-old Anchorage lawyer, has been majority leader of the Alaska House and twice unsuccessfully sought election to the U.S. Senate. He is the 49th state's first Republican senator.

He was a pilot in China during World War II. He and his wife, Ann, have five children.

The 47-year-old ex-Marine officer began mapping his Senate bid in 1966 soon after completing a four-year term as Oklahoma's first Republican governor.

Generally regarded as a conservative, Bellmon established himself as a hawk on Vietnam during the campaign and portrayed Monroney as a "rubber stamp" for "big spending" domestic policies.

At 36, Robert W. Packwood, Oregon Republican, becomes the youngest member of the Senate.

The Portland attorney has served three terms in the Oregon legislature beginning in 1963. He unseated 24-year veteran Democrat Wayne Morse by less than 3,300 votes in a recounted November election.

Two Women Are Rescued From Fires

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two women were rescued from fires in two separate apartments Thursday evening.

Mrs. Helen S. Gossard, 58, was found by firemen in a hall of her five-room apartment on the fifth floor of the 12-story building at 333 W. Meyer. Hospital attendants said Mrs. Gossard suffered severe burns on the right side of her body and smoke inhalation. Her condition was listed as satisfactory.

Firemen said the blaze probably was started by a cigarette. Flames were confined to the one apartment. There are 136 apartments, 4 hotel rooms and 2 shops in the 6-year-old building.

On the east side, at 2424 Benton Blvd., 79-year-old Mrs. Essie Rogers, was lifted to safety through a window by a neighbor after flames cut off escape through the front door.

Mrs. Rogers was treated for smoke inhalation at a hospital and was later reported in satisfactory condition.

The 1,885-mile length of the Rio Grande River is exceeded only by the Mississippi and Missouri rivers in the United States.

Kansas Republican Bob Dole, 45, is a lawyer and was twice decorated for "heroic achievement" in Italy during World War II when he lost use of one arm.

With experience in Kansas politics and as a three term congressman, Dole is an authority on farm problems but would like to establish a national image.

He has a reputation as a mid-western conservative but he says he has liberal leanings in civil rights and other areas and doesn't like such labels.

Missouri's Thomas F. Eagleton, 39, a Democrat, defeated Republican Rep. Thomas B. Curtis after having defeated Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., in the primary. A lawyer and post-war Navy veteran he has won several home-state elective offices. He calls himself a liberal.

Impossible Tasks Are His Best

By BOB THOMAS Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television producer Sheldon Leonard pictures himself as a tilter of network windmills, a dreamer of impossible programming dreams. Judging from his past performance, other producers should try the Don Quixote bit.

The latest of the Leonard lances is aimed at the Sunday spot now being vacated by the Phyllis Diller show. Leonard's new series, "My Friend Tony," will be facing the formidable opposition of "Mission: Impossible" and ABC's Sunday night movie starting Jan. 5.

"I think we can make it," he says confidently.

Maybe so. After all, Leonard himself made it from playing gangsters in wide lapels and snap-brim hats to being mentor of a long string of television successes. With each show he had to battle the ossified through patterns of the industry's programmers. He catalogued:

1. The Danny Thomas Show. "I was told that in the heartland of America, viewers would find no identification with a man who told jokes in a night club for a living. I solved that by placing the emphasis on him as a husband and father."

2. The Andy Griffith Show. "Now I was told the reverse: that a rural comedian would not register in urban America. But I had my research department look up the huge sales of records by Eddy Arnold; a large percentage were sold in cities. That proved to me Andy would go over in the urban areas."

3. The Dick Van Dyke Show. "An inside show about a television show couldn't possibly interest a mass audience, they told me. In fact, Jim Aubrey, then head of CBS, tried to convince me to change Dick from a comedy writer to an insurance man."

4. The Bill Dana Show. "This time they said I couldn't base a comedy show on a dialect comedian. The series failed—because I had tried to present a fantasy character against a realistic background."

5. "Gomer Pyle." "An audience gravely concerned about the draft and the Vietnam war would not watch a show about soldiers, they argued. I solved that by placing Jim Nabors in a military environment that had nothing to do with fighting a war."

6. "I Spy." "No show with foreign locations had ever succeeded, but I was willing to try." Leonard also pioneered with a Negro co-star, Bill Cosby.

The producer's challenge in "My Friend Tony" seems less profound than those which went before, but he claims it is a real challenge: "No series has ever had a foreign-speaking leading man."

The new star is Enzo Cerusico, a handsome Italian Leonard chose for an "I Spy" segment in Rome.

Thefts on Increase

BERLIN (AP) — West Berlin is caught in a wave of hit-and-run thefts. A police spokesman confirmed that 60 or more thefts from fur stores had occurred in the last two months of 1968 with an estimated total loss of $125,000.

Promotions to Colonel For 27 Negro Officers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has selected 27 Negro officers for promotion to full colonel in a move to encourage more Negroes to make the service a career.

The action will double the number of Negroes now rated "bird" colonel and set the stage for possible advancement of more Negroes to the rank of general.

In its long history the Army has had only two Negro generals—Brig. Gen. Freddie E. Davison, deputy commander of the 199th Light Infantry Brigade in Vietnam, and retired Brig. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis Sr.

A Pentagon spokesman said the 27 Negroes were among 1,053 Army officers selected for advancement beyond "light" colonel in a list drawn up last Nov. 6.

Jack Moskowitz, a deputy secretary of defense specializing in civil rights matters, hailed the move as "bound to encourage more Negroes to aim for careers in the service. He said in an interview it is "proof" there is equality in the armed forces.

Moskowitz acknowledged that the services have been relatively slow elevating Negro officers to higher ranks since segregated units were banned in 1948, but "there's been a lot of spurting going on," he said.

When President Harry S. Truman ordered the desegregation of military units in 1948, the Army had only one Negro colonel among its 1,306 black officers.

In 1962, when President John F. Kennedy ordered a new look at equality in the services, there were only six Negro colonels.

The number rose to 10 in 1964, dropped to nine in 1965, then rose again to 16 in 1966 and to 27 by the end of 1967.

"We used to get complaints from Negroes and civil rights organizations that there weren't enough Negro officers in the higher levels," Moskowitz said. "We told them it was simply a matter of time and numbers."

The Army Times, an unofficial military newspaper, predicted the Negro colonels' selection would have a "ripple effect clear down to company grade officers."

Latest Pentagon figures show more than 300,000 Negro officers and enlisted men, or 8.9 percent of the total active duty force. But of all officers in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force, only 8,335 or 2.1 percent are Negro.

The Army has the largest Negro officer total with 5,471 or 3.4 percent.

Two-Car Crash Fatal to Three

BOLIVAR, Mo. (AP)—A two-car collision at the edge of Bolivar took the lives of three persons and injured a fourth Thursday evening.

The highway patrol said the dead were James Leo McGinnis, 47, and his wife, Betty, 43, of Springfield, Mo., and Pattie Lemmon, 15, of Bolivar.

Albert G. Roberts, 18, of Polk, Mo., suffered severe nose and rib injuries and a possible arm fracture. He was taken to a Springfield hospital.

Fair Play?

It has been noticed that some boys have been wearing their hair long, so attractive Bernice Burton of Tallahassee, Fla., figured that "turn-about-is-fair-play." In this series of pictures she finds out how she would look wearing a variety of mustaches. In the top photo she tries the Zapata, Mexican or walrus-style with that droopy look. Bottom, left, is the Gay Nineties "Handlebar" variety with turned up tips. Last of all she tries the English Brush, or "stiff upper lip" as it is often called, complete with matching goatee. (UPI)

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—(N E A)—Down the stairs and into the living room swept Geraldine Page. As always a fascinating actress to watch. But in this case, the set was almost as fascinating.

The company shooting "What Ever Happened to Aunt Alice?" went on location to find the interior they wanted and found it in an old mansion in downtown Los Angeles, near where several freeways collide.

The house is an ancient structure. The owner says it's 90 years old and was moved in 1915 from its original location. If the stairs and the living room look familiar to you, you're pretty old, too.

The house was used twice, in the silent film era, once, for a now forgotten Mabel Normand film, once in a film version of Ibsen's "Ghosts." Now it's back in front of the camera.

knickknacks, all contribute to the general feeling of age the script requires.

This is almost the first scene in the film. Miss Page, playing a brand-new widow, is entertaining her late husband's lawyer, who tells her the expected huge estate is nonexistent. From here, Mrs. Marrable—Miss Page—begins to earn her money in a curiously macabre fashion.

At lunch, in her trailer parked down the street, Miss Page ate heartily.

"I love being a villainess," she said, "but I love doing all kinds of parts. My problem is to keep from doing the same thing over and over. Now I keep being offered villainess parts—for a long time it used to be southern spinsters and then it was drunken old movie actresses."

She has, of course, managed to avoid typing, through the application of extreme selectivity. She has been equally successful in combining motherhood with her career—she and her husband, actor Rip Torn, have three preschool-age children.

"Until last summer," she says, "when I went to Arizona when my father died, I had never been away from the children overnight. And we always have dinner together—Rip is fanatical about that."

They also guard their private hours jealously. When they are not working, they seldom go out. She says they could be described as anti-social—"a cruel word, but apt"—preferring to stay together as a family as much as they can.

Katzin, the director, took over when the picture was almost half-finished. He replaced Bernard Girard, for reasons given officially as a difference in artistic interpretation. A bit more than half the finished product will be Katzin's.

Around the set they say the picture should be retitled. Instead of "What Ever Happened to Aunt Alice?" make it "What Ever Happened to Barney Girard?"

Cousteau Has Whale of Show

Are we doing our children a favor by trying to make their lives beautiful?

You can't discuss such philosophical questions with many Hollywood actresses, but you can with Barbara Bain, Mission: Impossible's resident beauty. She's one of the few whose IQ is probably higher than the sum of bust-waist-hip measurements.

She was comparing her experiences as a child with her own two daughters today. She and her husband, Martin Landau, have Susan and Juliet, 8 and 6.

"Do children today," she asks, "have so much beauty in their lives that they don't seek it out, don't search for it?"

She grew up in Chicago and there wasn't much beauty close at hand. She says she lived in a nice apartment in a nice neighborhood herself, but in walking around the streets, she saw so much ugliness.

"The drunks, the frozen old ladies selling hot dogs, all that," she says. "To escape I read a lot and went to the Art Museum where everything is beautiful."

"Susan is 8. She's seen so little ugliness. Only last year, she saw a hunchback for the first time, and couldn't understand it."

Conclusion: children need to see a little ugliness, too.

Cuba, Hispaniola (consisting of Haiti and the Dominican Republic), Jamaica and Puerto Rico comprise the islands known as the Greater Antilles.

Marvin's Mission: Help the Micronesians

Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—(N.E.A.)—The business life of Hollywood stars doesn't stop, just because they are making movies. Go on any set and you'll see the stars talking, between takes, to their team—agent, manager, press agent, business manager.

I was with Lee Marvin in his dressing room at Paramount, where he's shooting "Paint Your Wagon." His business manager dropped in. He told Lee that an exploratory oil well he had invested in had come in. Lee very enthusiastic about the area, about its fishing, about helping the natives help themselves. He's having a boat built there now.

SITTING PRETTY, financially, at least, is Lee Marvin, taking a break here on the set of "Paint Your Wagon." A former plumber's helper, he is now a very highly paid actor who wants to help the people of Micronesia establish a commercial fishing industry.

"I'll use it when I'm there," he says. "The rest of the time, the islanders can use it. I want them to get started with commercial fishing—there's a tremendous fortune to be made, and the islanders should be the ones to make it, not some outsider."

"Civilization is bound to come to Micronesia, one way or the other. I'd like it to be the right way."

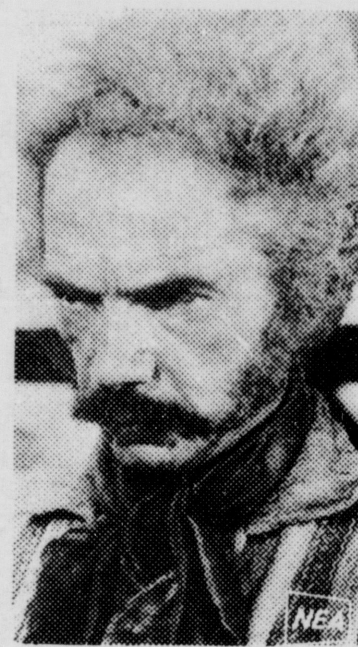

Another "Paint Your Wagon" star is Clint Eastwood. Clint is still bubbling about the birth of his son. The boy is now six months old. The Eastwoods have been married 14 years, so you can see why having a child means so much to him.

Clint is one of Hollywood's hottest properties at the moment. He's so much in demand that he says, "I think 1970 is free so far." His 1969 calendar is all booked up.

"It's nice to be in demand," Clint says. "I went through a long dry spell before this happened."

Ray Walston, in an eye-stopping set of red whiskers, is also in Josh Logan's big musical.

He told a funny story about how he got the part. He wanted it, because it is different for him. Ray plays the part of a Cornish miner. He asked Josh Logan for the part, but Logan said he wanted an authentic Cornishman.

Walston doesn't give up easily. He went to a dialect coach and said, "Teach me an authentic Cornish accent." The coach played a tape of the real thing and it was such a thick accent that Ray couldn't understand a word. He borrowed the tape from the coach and went to see Logan.

"I want you to hear something," he said, and played the tape. Logan couldn't understand it, either.

"That's the authentic Cornish accent you wanted," Walston said. And he walked out of the office with the job. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Andrews Still Sans Senses

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)

Dana Andrews has fully recovered from his bad fall, except that he has lost his senses of taste and smell. Doctors expect they will return, but meanwhile it's a decided inconvenience. . . . CBS is readying a series to be called Shepherd's Flock, about a pro football player who becomes a minister. It's being put together for Kenneth Mars, who is so funny as the Nazi in "The Producers." Mars' leading lady is a young actress who insists she'll use her real name—Carrie Snodgrass. . . . Peace or no peace, stars keep going to Vietnam, urged by the Hollywood Overseas Committee. . . . Latest to join the long, long trail is Joey Bishop, to be followed by George Jessel, with Bob Hope set for his annual Christmas visit.

COLOR LOG PERIODIC ANTENNA

Enjoy clearer reception on every channel—color or black and white. Install the powerful new JFD LPV Color Log Periodic—the advanced new space-age antenna discovery.

All of its elements (not just some as in other ordinary antennas) work together for peak picture power on channels 2 to 13—provide FM stereo and mono, too. Scientific patented log periodic design (same as that of antennas used to track satellites through space) is the reason. Whether you want more channels, better color, or clearer black and white pictures, call us, your JFD LPV Color Log Periodic TV antenna dealer. See the remarkable difference.

Counting Prisoners

South Vietnamese soldiers of the 21st ARVN Division count prisoners rounded up during increased operations in the Ca Mau, South Vietnam area, which has long been a Viet Cong stronghold. Over 100 Viet Cong have been reported killed in the stepped-up operations and many Communist-base areas have been found and destroyed.

Sharp Reduction In American Casualties

SAIGON (AP) — The year 1968 ended with the lowest weekly American death toll since the bombing of North Vietnam ended, the U.S. Command reported today. But the number of South Vietnamese dead was the highest in three months, indicating an increasing part in the war by the Saigon government's troops.

The reported toll of enemy dead was as usual, above 2,000 and five times the allied total.

Communiques today reflected the recent changed nature of the war—small, widely scattered ground actions, the uncovering of more enemy supply dumps, and the shelling of allied posts coupled with enemy hit-and-run attacks.

The death of 113 American servicemen Christmas week was the lowest in 10 weeks. South Vietnamese losses in the same week were 279 dead, the highest in 13 weeks, while 2,135 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were reported killed.

The casualty report covered the Christmas truce period, and the figures indicated the cease-fire was only nominally observed.

The cease-fire declared by the Viet Cong command for New Year's ended early today, and shortly after two American bases and one South Vietnamese post were shelled.

No significant ground action was reported, although American and South Vietnamese troops were patrolling up and down the country.

North Vietnam claimed its gunners in Ha Bac Province brought down a pilotless U.S. reconnaissance plane today. The U.S. Command does not comment on the activities of pilotless planes over the North.

Since the U.S. and South Vietnamese commands did not declare a New Year's truce this year, there was no question of any violations. A U.S. spokesman said the war "went on at about the same level—it wasn't as bad as it has been and it wasn't as good as it could be."

The Viet Cong cease-fire ended at 1 a.m. Saigon time—about the time millions of Americans were turning on television sets to watch the annual bowl games.

Within a few minutes about 10 enemy shells burst on the U.S. Marine airfield at Marble Mountain, near Da Nang. A few hours later an artillery base of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division 60 miles north of Saigon was hit by about 65 mortar rounds. Casualties and damage were light, officers reported.

Viet Cong gunners also opened up on U.S. Navy river boats moving South Vietnamese troops along a Mekong Delta canal. Ten Navy men were wounded, and South Vietnamese casualties were described as "light." Enemy casualties were not known.

North of Saigon at the U.S. 24th Evacuation Hospital, three 21-year-old American soldiers freed by the Viet Cong on New Year's Day were eating heartily and preparing for a quick return home.

A spokesman said the three would complete their preliminary debriefings today and would probably be aboard an evacuation flight to the United States early Friday.

They are Spec. 4 James W. Brigham, Ocala, Fla.; Spec. 4 Thomas N. Jones, Lynnville, Ind., and Pfc. Donald G. Smith, Akron, Pa.

They were preceded by Maj. James Rowe, of McAllen, Tex., the Special Forces officer who escaped Tuesday from five years of imprisonment. He left early today.

Nixon Is Set For Checkup

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President-elect Nixon gets his first thorough physical examination in 14 months today. A spokesman described it as a routine checkup.

Nixon is seeing Dr. John Lungen of Long Beach, his long-time personal physician, for an examination expected to last about 2½ hours. Lungren traveled with the President-elect during the campaign and said then the candidate's health was excellent.

Press assistant Ronald L. Ziegler said the visit to Lungren was routine. He said Nixon has such a checkup about once a year.

Nixon was to drop in later at a luncheon honoring Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch of California, who is to be his secretary of health, education and welfare.

Tonight, the President-elect and his wife will go to Anaheim for what is billed as a welcome home to his native Orange County. That is being held at the arena of the Anaheim Convention Center, and it apparently will amount to a testimonial rally.

Football fan Nixon went to the Rose Bowl in Pasadena Wednesday, watched Ohio State University defeat the University of Southern California, and said both were great teams.

"A great game," Nixon said. He said USC mistakes—a rash of second-half fumbles and interceptions—made the difference.

A Special Appeal Made For Blood

In an effort to overcome what Bothwell Hospital calls "a critical shortage of blood" in the community, the Community Blood Bank will receive donors from 3 to 7 p.m. Friday at the hospital.

Persons interested in donating blood may make an appointment by calling the hospital at 826-8833.

A hospital spokesman said the local shortage of blood is only part of a nationwide problem that has been compounded by whole blood requirements in Vietnam, which have cut sharply into the domestic supply.

The hospital said that an all-out plea is being made for persons to donate on Friday.

Holiday Deaths At Peak

Traffic accidents killed 163 persons during the one-day New Year's observance which ended at midnight Wednesday. The number of deaths was a record for a one-day celebration of the holiday.

The record for a 30-hour New Year's period since World War II had been 160, set in 1957. This also was the most recent time the holiday driving period ran 30 hours.

During a recent nonholiday midweek period of equal length, highway mishaps took the lives of 107 persons. The count was made by The Associated Press for a comparison with the New Year's toll.

The National Safety Council had estimated that 200 to 260 persons might die in traffic accidents during the period which began at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

Bad driving weather was common throughout the Pacific Northwest, over much of the Great Lakes region and in a large part of the Northeast during the holiday.

Last week's one-day Christmas driving period accounted for 231 traffic deaths.

The low toll for a one-day New Year's observance was 93 in 1946. During the three-day 1967 New Year's holiday, the toll was 376.

The period surveyed by the AP for comparison purposes ran from 6 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 10 to midnight Wednesday, Dec. 11.

Highway Work For Cooper County Set

The Missouri State Highway Commission issued a call for bids Jan. 17 on 140 miles of highway work which is expected to cost about $17,500,000.

Included is work in Cooper County on Route AA involving installation of a 102-foot precast concrete slab bridge over Smiley Creek a mile and a half east of Route B, along with 6 mile of grading and surfacing of approaches.

In all, the department reported the work would be on 73.9 miles of primary system roads, 14½ miles of urban system improvements; and 51.9 miles of farm-to-market system projects. No interstate work is included.

Buries Troubles

Virlyn Motes, an Atlanta, Ga., cosmetics salesman, stands in hole with his 1967 automobile that he had buried in his front lawn. Motes said he was protesting the car's high repair bills and the lack of warranty on a new motor he had installed after the old one allegedly locked.

US Makes Another Bid to Open Talks

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance met today with a North Vietnamese envoy in a new attempt to get the stalled Paris peace talks moving. It was the first American-North Vietnamese meeting in two weeks.

Vance's session with Col. Ha Van Lau took place at a secret rendezvous believed to be somewhere in the suburb of Sceaux south of Paris.

Their meeting at American initiative suggested some shift may have taken place in the attitude assumed by the Saigon government on the tangled problem of the shape of the conference table.

The Saigon government had set itself positively against accepting a North Vietnamese proposal for making the Paris parley a roundtable affair. In Saigon's view this would give the Viet Cong the appearance of independence and equality.

The United States had been ready to accept the roundtable offer believing it would have been accepted widely as a symbol of compromise. Accordingly, in recent days Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker has been in contact with President Nguyen Van Thieu in Saigon presumably going over the concept of allied attitudes toward the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

Vance's meeting with Lau suggested some factor has arisen to make a reopening of exchanges worthwhile. Lau two weeks ago had told Vance it was pointless to move on to a discussion of other Vietnam peace conference issues until the shape of the table had been settled.

Before setting out to meet Lau the U.S. envoy had spent 50 minutes with Ambassador Pham Dang Lam, Saigon's chief envoy.

Lam declined all comment, saying only that contacts interrupted by the yuletide holidays had been renewed.

Fewer People Hurt in Local Auto Mishaps

There were more accidents in Sedalia during 1968 than during the previous year, but fewer injuries resulted from these accidents, according to figures compiled by Officer Clarence Harrell, traffic clerk for the Sedalia Police Department.

The final count shows there were 859 accidents in the city in 1968, compared to 822 in 1967. There were 262 injuries counted in 1968, compared to 284 during 1967.

There were four deaths from car accidents in the city in 1968, compared with five in 1967.

The December compilation shows 97 accidents with 21 injuries and no deaths, compared to 92 accidents, 21 injuries and no deaths during the same month in 1967.

Israelis Pound Arab Positions

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli warplanes struck Arab positions in Jordan today and on the Suez Canal Israeli and Egyptian troops exchanged small arms fire.

An Israeli army spokesman said the warplanes roared in low over the Jordan River near Beit Yosef, 10 miles south of the Sea of Galilee, to silence guns that had fired on an army patrol.

A Jordanian army spokesman said six Israeli Mirage jets attacked the Ziglab Dam in the northern Jordan Valley with napalm, rockets and machine-gun fire but claimed they were turned back by anti-aircraft fire.

The spokesman said Israeli tanks opened fire on plantations in the Menshia area. There were no casualties in either attack, he added, but a house near the dam and some plantations were damaged.

On the Suez Canal front, an Israeli army spokesman accused the Egyptians of opening fire south of Lake Timsah at Israeli troops on the occupied east bank. The Israelis fired back and there were no casualties in the 30-minute exchange. The Lake is about midway in the canal.

The army also said it intercepted and drove back a band of saboteurs who crossed from Jordan near Massada, just south of the Sea of Galilee Wednesday night. He reported the Israeli troops found an assault file and a bag of antipersonnel mines.

Jordan reported earlier that armed Israeli helicopters struck at Jordanian forces in the southern desert Wednesday and that a Jordanian soldier was killed.

There was no admission of the attack from the Israelis, but the

Accidents Are Fatal For Ten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least ten persons were killed in traffic accidents in Missouri between 6 p.m. New Year's Eve and midnight Wednesday.

Seven of the fatalities were recorded Wednesday and were included in the 1969 traffic death count.

Two St. Louis men were killed Wednesday when their cars were involved in a head-on collision on U.S. 67 in north St. Louis County. The highway patrol identified them as Frank Slesinski, 54, and James L. Hopkins, 31.

Alvin A. Gaehele, 36, Glenco, Mo., was killed in a two-car accident on M-100 in west St. Louis early Wednesday.

Shirley Ann Dunahay, 17, Ellington, Mo., died when the car in which she was a passenger went out of control and overturned along M-106 near Ellington Wednesday.

Jimmy E. Piatt, 17, Eminence, Mo., was killed when a pickup truck went off a county road and struck a tree near Eminence Wednesday. The patrol believed Piatt was a passenger.

William R. Weston, 25, Farmington, Mo., was killed early Wednesday when his car went off a county road near Farmington and struck a tree.

Arthur Baker, 50, Festus, a city water department employee, died when hit by a car as he repaired a water main in the street early Wednesday.

Killed after 6 p.m. Tuesday were: James F. Kadenhead, 21, Springfield, Mo., in a two-car collision in Springfield; Donald Mecklehoft, 28, Crystal City, Mo., in a one-car accident on Interstate 55 south of St. Louis; Michael H. Woods, 22, Kansas City, in a head-on collision in Kansas City.

Familiar Faces On The Scene

All of the Pettis County officials elected Nov. 5 have taken the oath of office, and regular appointments have been made.

Even though the officials began new terms, faces around the courthouse remain the same — all of the officials were re-elected and all of the appointees were re-appointed for their positions.

Beginning new terms of office are Sheriff Emmett Fairfax, Assessor Jerry Trotter, Prosecuting Attorney Henry Keeler, Judge Eastern District E.L. (Red) Birdsong, Judge Western District Zeb Thomas, Surveyor Keith Ekstrom, Public Administrator Lloyd Farris and Coroner C. Gordon Stauffer.

Appointees include Donald Barns, assistant to the prosecuting attorney, and Donald G. Stratton, E.J. Thomas and Orval Lewis as deputy sheriffs.

County Clerk Jim Green said he did not hold a formal swearing-in ceremony for the group, but read the oath of office to the officials separately.

Czechs Retain Control

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia's most sweeping government change since the August invasion left the occupied nation today with familiar leaders still in control and still pledged to press ahead with stalled reform programs.

Premier Oldrich Cernik's new federal government, announced Wednesday, contained no unexpected members. There was no indication that the wholesale reshuffle involved in setting up the new federal system would lead, under Soviet pressure, to a purge of progressives.

Diplomatic observers said the new lineup made no basic shift in the balance between progressives and conservatives.

The federal system gives more autonomy to the Czech and Slovak governments but leaves over-all programs in the hands of the federal Cabinet.

There were two additions to the Cabinet's senior ranks.

Jan Marko, 48, a relatively unknown engineer and economic specialist, was named foreign minister. He succeeds Jiri Hajek, who resigned Sept. 19 under Soviet pressure after denouncing the invasion at the United Nations.

Marko was one of the progressives elected to the Communist party central committee at a clandestine congress soon after the invasion.

The other new man is Jan Tabacek, also an engineer, named foreign trade minister. He succeeds Vaclav Vales, who became a deputy premier.

Deputy Premiers Petr Colotka and Frantisek Hamouz remained in the new government. Samuel Faltan, another new deputy premier, has been chairman of the Slovak National Front.

Two members of the top Communist party leadership—Gustav Husak and Lubomir Strougal—lost deputy premierships but held on to more important party jobs that form their power bases.

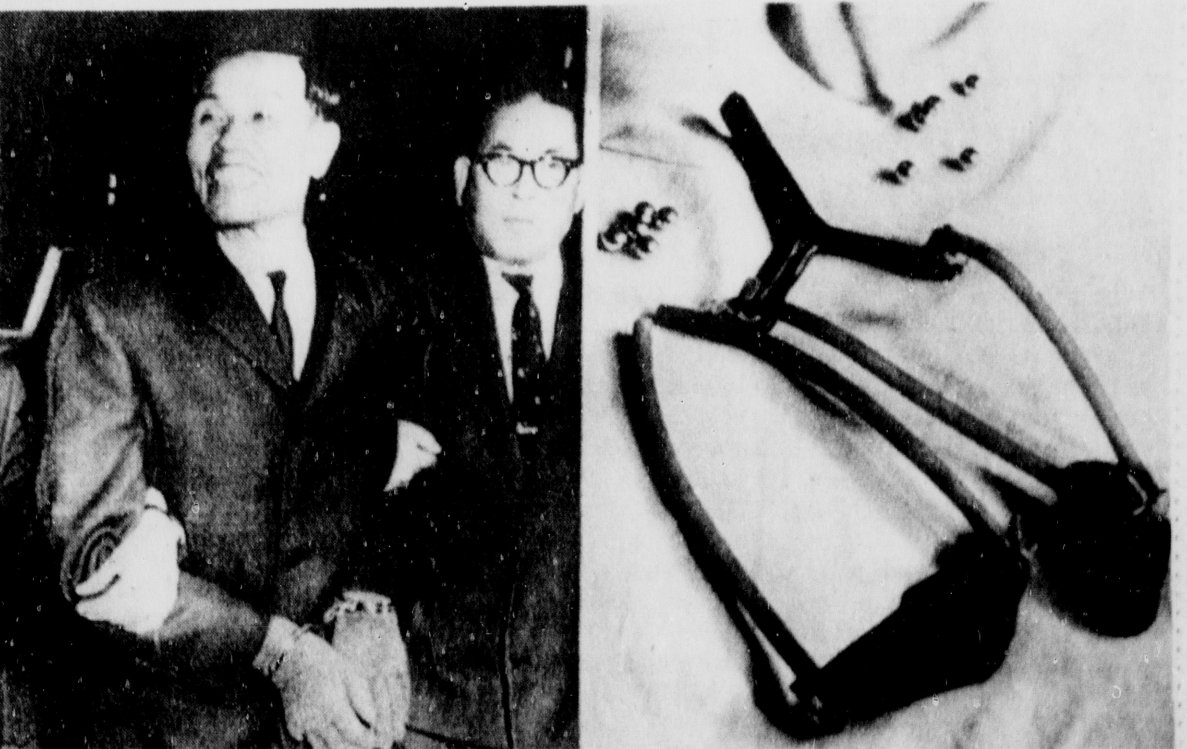

The accent through the Cabinet was on men known as specialists to shepherd the inflation-troubled economy through a difficult period. Cernik, 47, is also an economic specialist.

There were no changes in the top ranks of the Communist party, which is still headed by First Secretary Alexander Dubcek. The party is the nation's most important body and sets the policy the government carries out.

Cernik's new Cabinet contains seven senior ministers. Five of them were members of his government that resigned Sunday. They are Lt. Gen. Mar the defense minister; Interior Minister Jan Pelnar, Finance Minister Bohumil Sucharda, Planning Minister Frantisek Vlasak and Labour and Welfare Minister Michal Stancel.

A group of state committee chairmen form a junior level in the new cabinet. Again the accent was on specialists and there were no surprises.

Unusual Attack

Factory worker Kenzo Okuzaki is led in handcuffs by policemen following his arrest in Tokyo after he allegedly fired a steel ball from a slingshot in the direction of Emperor Hirohito while the emperor and his family received New Year's greetings from thousands of Japanese. Neither the emperor nor members of the Imperial Family were hurt.

Hope Also Endures...

In Paris, intelligent men dispute over the shape of a conference table while soldier and peasant continue to die in Vietnam.

In Nigeria, little children continue to starve while their fathers wage a bitter and bloody war over who is to rule them.

In the Middle East, Arab and Jew continue to kill each other in a quarrel over the same land that was watered with the blood of Crusader and Turk, Jew and Roman, Persian and Babylonian centuries before.

In America and Russia, billions continue to be expended to maintain the means whereby each country may slaughter hundreds of millions of each other's population.

Throughout the world, disputations between individuals and between nations, hatred, strife, prejudice and fear ravage the human heart worse than any virus ravages the body.

So ends the old year, so begins the new year, 1969.

The coming year will see its share of natural catastrophes — earthquakes, floods, fires. As-yet-unconquered diseases and unpreventable accidents will take their toll.

But the misery occasioned by these "acts of God" pales into insignificance compared to the misery which has been caused and will continue to be caused by the acts of man. Their sum in sorrow will be as nothing in comparison with the sorrow man will continue to inflict upon himself.

Ernest Hemingway once said of Cuba that men could have made a paradise of that island, had they but wished. Instead, they chose to make it a place of squalor, ignorance, injustice and oppression.

Men hate themselves and hate life, decided Hemingway.

This was during the time of Batista. Is Cuba under Castro any different? Is the world any different, except in terms of magnitude of suffering, than it was a thousand, two thousand, ten thousand years ago?

Man possesses the intellect, and is increasingly achieving the power, to make the world a paradise. He could do it now, in a generation. Yet he chooses not to.

Is it some quirk of his evolutionary make-up, some built-in guarantee of eventual extinction that makes him unfit for Eden?

Yet the need for love and the dream of universal brotherhood and peace are as much an innate part of man's nature as is his fascination with destruction. His impulses to charity, altruism and selflessness are fully as strong as his penchants for suspicion, hatred and killing, else he would have eliminated himself from the face of this globe long since.

Nobility is as much a human attribute as is smallness of soul, if less common. We could not recognize the ugliness we have created had we no concept of the beauty that could be. We stand in the mud, and we reach to touch the stars.

Man's inhumanity to man continues as the new year begins.

But hope also endures, and the undying vision of something better that someday will be.

What Ends Freedom, Affluence?

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

As the American people enter 1969, they may begin, hopefully, to get closer to an understanding of their fundamental problems than was true during unpredictable, puzzling, and curiously rigorous 1968.

For all the insistent clamor from the student barricades, the black power meeting places, and the intellectual liberals' drawing rooms, the drawing rooms, the deepest problems facing the U.S. citizenry — and to a great extent the whole western world — are not centered on how to obtain more affluence and more freedom for more people.

The year 1968 was gravely disquieting not just because two greatly known public figures were assassinated, or because soldiers had to tramp the streets of many cities in April to put down riots, or because the Democrats conducted a national convention in Chicago in an atmosphere that offered a weird mixture of chaotic anarchy and elements of repression by a civil authority.

The year was most disturbing for its continuous and very thorough demonstration that a considerable proportion of the American people, like their counterparts in Europe and elsewhere, do not know how to use freedom and affluence when they have it.

Somehow, from all the upsetting episodes of this wild year, the erroneous notion arose that democratic government and its supporting free economic system were seen by many as insufficient to the demands of a swiftly changing age. Some young people fed this misconception by representing abuses of freedom as necessary "new freedoms" and by reviling an economic structure that allowed them literally to drive to the radicals' barricades in their own cars.

But moves beyond freedom toward license, and shouts for a more effortless access to material goods, not only have confused the general picture but reflect the bewilderment in the minds of the troubled and the rebellious as 1969 opens.

As the writer, Irving Kristol, recently observed with acute perception, the true root of the matter is the enlarging discovery by Americans and others in western civilization that freedom and affluence are not really goals in themselves. There is no ultimate magic, no final fulfillment, in the achievement of either or both of these objectives.

Freedom to do what? Affluence to what ends? These questions, Americans are learning with increasing force, are the real ones.

They, more than anything else, are at the core of the western world's spiritual malaise. The thunderous complaint, as Kristol notes, is against the aspect of purposelessness in life which many Americans think they detect as they gaze from the mountaintops of freedom and affluence.

There is no way to talk about the matter that does not sound trite. The missing element is the excitement of challenge. When freedom, in the reasonable sense, is a commonplace, and material things come easily, people look for substitute challenges.

So some of our young folk manufacture excitements by committing crimes, by pretending that adequate freedoms are insufficient, by demanding the impossible, by mounting campus revolts in which there is foolish talk of "liberating" college buildings.

They find their heroes in the antiheroes of the dictator's world, disdainful of the fact that Mao and Castro and Ho Chi Minh give "purpose" to life by imposing broad, rigid solutions at the cost of freedom and human variety.

In an age grown accustomed to a big role in life for government, it was perhaps understandable that the complainers of 1968 looked to government for the investing of purpose in their existence. But in our society that charge has never laid on government. Neither President-elect Richard Nixon nor any responsible Democratic leader has any thought that giving purpose to this free, relatively affluent society is properly the burden of government. The challenge of finding real challenge rests inevitably in unexplored realms of self-help which are surely quite unrelated to the bizarre distortions conceived by some in the unrest of 1968.

Guest Editorial

MONTGOMERY (Ala.) ADVERTISER: Above and Beyond. — Any United States senator worth his weight at the pork barrel would be agast if his sincerity about protecting this nation from nuclear attack were questioned.

Yet, attendance at the secret session of the Senate the other day to consider a new missile defense system appears to ask just that question. Consider the following paragraph from a wire service story concerning the closed door meeting on national security:

"About 35 to 40 senators were in the chamber for the unusual session — a large number for any Senate debate and particularly impressive in light of the fact that the debate coincided with the first game of the world series."

Here was a question involving national survival — which is pretty humdrum business these days — and 35 to 40 senators bestirred themselves to attend.

Sleep well tonight; the Senate is half-awake.

Economic Fish Power

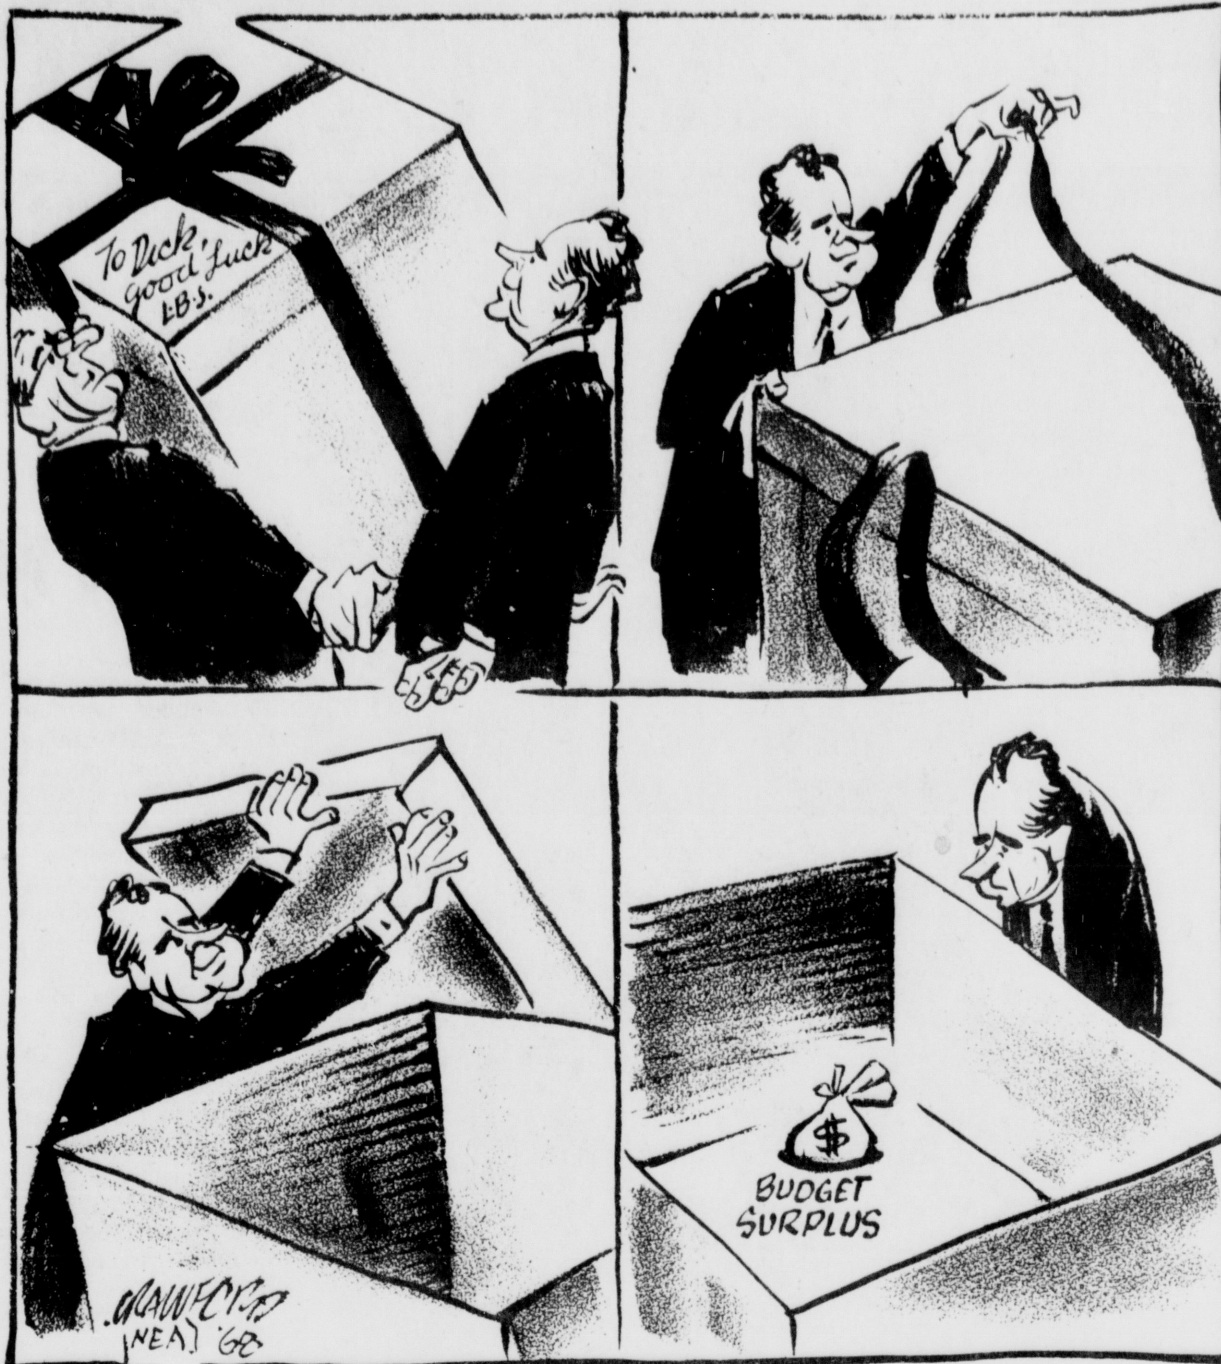

Many of America's problems obviously stem from our great and growing size alone. But smallness is not necessarily a guarantee of social serenity.

Consider tiny Iceland, with a population of a mere 196,000.

So dependent is that country on the fishing industry that a drop in the price of fish and fish products on the world market has caused a recession there. The recession forced the government to revoke a law requiring that wages and salaries be adjusted to the cost of living.

This in turn provoked the Icelandic Federation of Labor to call a general strike to demand that a scheduled 5 per cent pay rise be granted anyway. And the strike has forced short-handed hospitals to accept only acute cases, threatens to close the schools for lack of custodial help and has brought about milk and gasoline rationing.

New York doesn't seem such a bad place after all.

Allies Flounder While U.S. Hedges on Political Aid

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—

Time and again, underdeveloped foreign countries have begged the United States for political aid in developing strong political institutions—aid that would have strengthened them against Communist subversion and that likely would have reduced the amount of U.S. military assistance and military involvement.

Time and again that aid has been refused, or given with such lack of enthusiasm as to be meaningless.

Take one example. A few years back, when the South Vietnamese were writing their new national constitution, South Vietnamese leaders this reporter talked with believed that they could do a better job if they had access to the experience of other countries. They didn't want to copy any foreign constitution. But they did want to pick and choose successful ideas from other lands.

It was as Dr. Robert Andrews Millikan, the Nobel Prize-winning physicist once said, "When I start out on some research I want to find out what all the other men have done in this field before me—to profit by their successes and their mistakes."

Men were available to give the South Vietnamese that "experience." Dr. Royama Masamichi, the great constitutional lawyer of Japan, was one non-American example. But there were and are outstanding constitutional experts in Korea, Great Britain, the United States, West Germany, Thailand and in a host of other countries. These experienced men could have been brought in, not as advisers, but as "reference sources"—men whose brains could have been picked by the South Vietnamese.

There was no danger that the proudly independent South Vietnamese constitution writers wouldn't make their own decisions.

This reporter was in South Vietnam at the time. He asked some key U.S. diplomats why this help wasn't given. It was refused, these Americans said, because it would be interfering in the internal affairs of South Vietnam.

This is, indeed, a strange definition of interference.

Or take the Dominican Republic.

A number of years ago, well before the island erupted and U.S. troops were sent in to prevent Communists from taking over the revolt, a Dominican ambassador asked the United States to send 300 Peace Corpsmen to his small country.

Jack Vaughn, then head of the Peace Corps for Latin America, asked what sort of corpsmen were needed—doctors, engineers, sanitation experts, teachers?

None of these, Vaughn was told. What was needed, said the ambassador, was for the United States to send 300 representative young people from various communities in the United States. The Dominicans would send these youths to towns and villages all over the country—to live. Then the local Dominicans could talk to them on a day-to-day basis about how their communities are run at home.

The Dominican villagers thereby would learn many things and adopt those which seemed to fit their needs and wishes.

As it turned out, the key problems that surfaced in the revolt were present in large measure because of the lack of strong democratic political institutions.

The United States sent millions of dollars into the Dominican Republic for a number of years. Per person, for that period, it was one of the major recipients of U.S. aid. When those aid figures were analyzed, economic and medical aid was high, but the amount of aid given to help the Dominicans develop strong political institutions of their own choosing was so small it barely showed in the figures.

Everyone makes mistakes in bidding and play. One test of a good player is his ability to recover from them.

East's ace of diamonds took the first trick. South falsecarded with the eight. He had nothing to lose by this since the eight and five were equals. East played the nine of diamonds at trick two and South played the jack. West was in with the queen and started to think.

While West was thinking, South noticed that he had made a serious mistake. He could have ensured his contract by rising with his king of diamonds at trick two and going after hearts. He could lose the heart finesse and relax. If East led a third diamond then West could not hold more than two more and three diamond tricks and a heart would not beat him. If West had started with five diamonds East would not have another diamond to lead.

Eventually West led the queen of spades. By this time South had worked out a line of play to make up for his carelessness at trick two. He let the queen hold. West continued with the jack and South let that card hold also. At this point a club shift by West would have defeated the contract but West played a third spade and South was able to make the hand with a Vienna coup.

He cashed three spades and the king of diamonds and discarded four hearts from dummy. East had to make three discards. The first was a club, the second a heart, the third impossible. He could not afford to throw another club and so let a heart go.

Now South led a heart to dummy's ace, dropping East's king. He returned to his hand with the ace of clubs in order to cash his 10 of hearts. Dummy's king and queen of clubs were then good for the last two tricks.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What is the nation's newest Hall of Fame?

A—Pentagon's Hall of Heroes dedicated in 1968. The nameplates of 3,210 men who have achieved the nation's highest military decoration are displayed in the hall.

Q—How many eggs does the common lobster lay?

A—A female lobster usually lays eggs only once every two years. She may lay 5,000 to 100,000 or more eggs at a time.

Q—Are there any lineal descendants of Shakespeare?

A—No. All his grandchildren died childless and his last direct descendant died in 1670.

Betty Canary Vibrant With Life

Boarded-up windows and empty stores are indications to an outsider that yet another small town is drying up and dying. The citizens have known it before the stores emptied. It was evident when each high school graduating class moved on to greener pastures and jobs with pay checks.

David Butwin's article in the Oct. 4 edition of Saturday Review, "Portrait of a Declining Town," told the story of a typical dying town—Eastport, Maine.

I remembered it when I visited a living and growing small town not long ago. I was in Columbus, Ind., referred to by Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson as the Athens of the Prairie.

The industries in Columbus are home-grown. Cummins, for example, the big name in diesel engines, was begun by a man who was employed as a chauffeur for a wealthy family. He tinkered with engines in the garage until he was ready to go into business.

Cummins, as well as other big employers such as Cosco and Arvin, have joined together with smaller businesses to make their community a model city.

But, it's a long way from the concept of a "company town." What they have done, instead, is work with the citizens in a continuing effort to make Columbus not just a place to live, but almost a way of life.

When I was there I saw a busload of architects and their wives from Butler, Pa. Their company had arranged the trip.

Why? Because buildings in Columbus (schools, churches, a retirement home, fire houses, a skating rink, a bank, to name a few) have been designed by architects such as Eliel Saarinen and Eero Saarinen. Space doesn't permit listing all the names. You could, however, pick up a copy of Who's Who in American Architects. There's Harry Weese; one of his major designs is the U.S. embassy in Ghana. And Norman Fletcher of The Architects Collaborative, Boston, who counts among his designs the American embassy in Athens. Or, there's Kenneth Caruthers, of I. M. Pei Architects in New York; he designed the Kennedy Memorial Library at Harvard. And there is a school in Columbus designed by John Carl Warnecke of San Francisco. He designed the John F. Kennedy Memorial in Washington, D.C. A new golf course, one of four in town, was done by Robert Trent Jones, who has been called the nation's foremost golf-architect.

The money for all this? It comes from a foundation (started by an industry) which pays architect's fees with no strings attached.

The enthusiasm? It comes from everybody in town. From housewives who volunteer to be tour guides. Or, there's Mr. Doup, a gentleman who is "retired" but finds time to travel with at least four visiting groups each week. The pride? It extends to every level in society.

A local industrialist stated the purpose of the Columbus program with, "As Winston Churchill said, 'First we shape our buildings, then our buildings shape us.' The quality of our environment determines the quality of life we lead in it."

THE WELL CHILD®

Pinworms Are Common; Eggs Easily Spread

A mother writes that her child recently played with some children who have pinworms. Their mother takes a lighthearted attitude toward this infestation but the writer is worried and would like to know whether her child could get pinworms by just playing with those children and whether she should keep her child home until, if he has the worms, he has gotten rid of them.

Pinworms are indeed common as the lighthearted mother implied. A child will not get them from just being around children who have them but that does increase his chances. Here is how they are transmitted. Pinworm eggs with a diameter of about 1-500 of an inch get on one's fingers or food and are swallowed. In the digestive tract they hatch and mature. When a female pinworm is full of eggs she works her way out of the digestive tract, usually at night.

The anal itching is not enough to waken the host but may cause scratching. The tiny eggs will remain on the fingers or under the nails and on the sheets and night clothes. Making the beds and putting the pajamas away will send the eggs into the air and wherever they land they are ready to be picked up and start the cycle all over again.

This mother's child may or may not have gotten pinworms. If he hasn't, there is no need to treat him. If he has, the whole family should be treated at the same time. Meanwhile, they should scrupulously wash their hands before each meal and after each trip to the toilet. No quarantine or fumigation is necessary.

Q—My son, 5, is bright but overactive. In nursery school he can't stay at any one thing. Our doctor is giving him Atarax. Does it have any bad side effects? Is it habit forming?

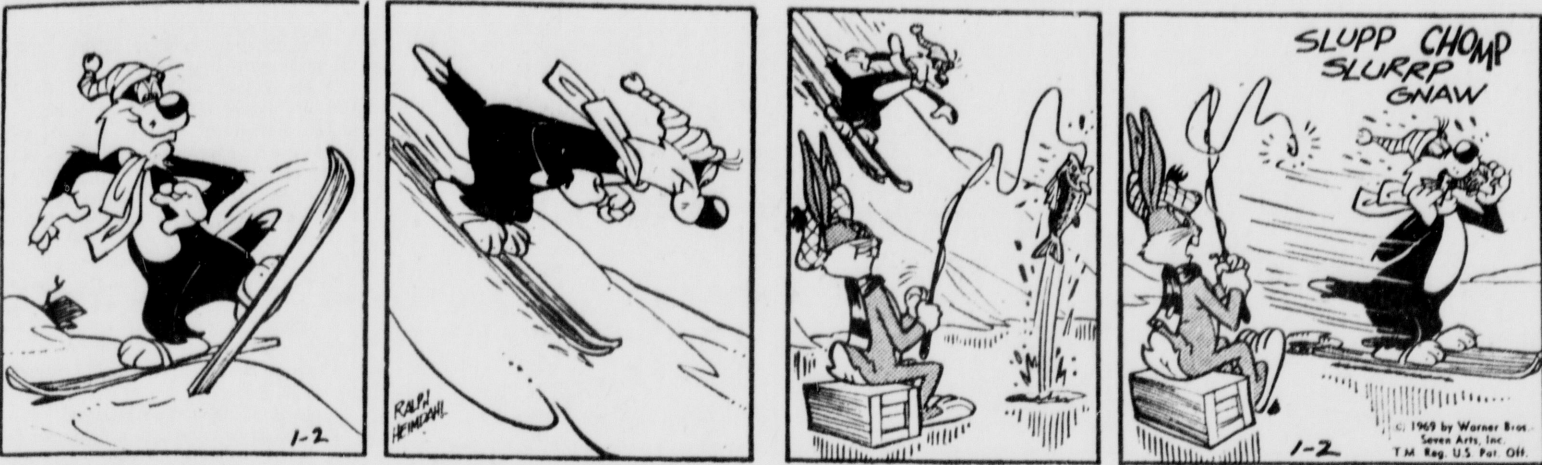

A—Hydroxyzine (Atarax) is a minor tranquilizer and is not habit-forming. Anyone who takes it for a long time should have frequent blood checks and liver function tests.

Although most children outgrow the tendency to be overactive between the ages of 10 and 12, they do present a problem in their early years. A recent study suggests that tranquilizers may aggravate the trouble and that stimulating drugs, strange as it may seem, bring about a marked improvement.

Letter to the Editor

MR. AND MRS. JOHN R. COLSON (Sweet Springs, R.D. 2) — As citizens of a farming community we disapprove of the plan to take away our local schools and our personal power to run them and to elect our own community men to supervise our schools. This new proposal will also raise our taxes and many other disagreeable things. We feel this plan of reorganization should be voted down.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Flowers, Birds, Ships—Made From Bias Tape

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Hazel not to discard even an inch of leftover bias tape as its uses are only limited by her imagination. Monograms, flowers, birds, trains, animals, ships and planes all add lovely finishing touches to children's clothes, house coats, shifts, tea towels, guest towels and pillowcases. Sketch a rough design on tissue paper and baste the tape in place. Press and pin to the garment or linen. Sew on by hand or machine and then tear away the paper.

If the pieces of tape are long enough, harmonizing colors may be combined, faggoted together for distinctive pockets and yokes. If you lean toward the ultramodern, try combining the bright colors into far-out mod designs and then zigzag on with dark colors.—JANE

DEAR POLLY—Hazel—Here are a few ways to use leftover bias tape and rickrack. A pretty personalized apron can be made using this as a border along the bottom. Write the name of the person with the tape or rickrack on the pocket. Using a different color tape for each letter, write a child's name across the front of play clothes. A combination of tape and rickrack can often be used to make pictures for the fronts of play clothes. Plain curtains can be dressed up by making a border of flowers for the bottom and the valance.—ANN

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I am getting older and need easier ways to do things. I wonder if I could wash my rough plaster walls with a roller and also could I put on enamel paint with a roller?—MRS. P. J. L.

DEAR POLLY—My Pointer is for Majorette whose baton left rust spots on her white uniform. Moisten the stain with oxalic solution (one tablespoon of the crystals to one cup of warm water). If this does not remove the stain, heat the solution and repeat. Or, the crystals might be put directly on the stain after it is moistened with water. Rinse article thoroughly after using. I find this safe for all fabrics except nylon but I would not use it on colors. Also experiment on an inconspicuous spot to see its effect on the material, just as a general precaution.—MRS. C. V. C.

Help Family In Trouble At City's Edge

A Neosho family on its way to Columbia New Year's Eve was assisted by Fire Chief Emmett "Potts" Vaught and Assistant Chief of Police Charles Knapp, when their car broke down near the South Brown's Service Station.

According to Knapp they obtained the parts for the car from Bill Greer Motors on West Broadway about 11:30 p.m. but could find no one to repair the car that night. The family was en route to Columbia where their 17-year-old son was to be operated on the next day for internal hemorrhaging.

Vaught offered to take the family on to Columbia in his car as they could not afford an ambulance. Knapp accompanied Vaught and the family on the trip.

Blaiberg Survives First Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Philip Blaiberg, celebrating the first anniversary of his heart transplant, said by transatlantic telephone today that he will visit the United States in March or April.

He would have come sooner, he said, but for the cold weather and the Hong Kong flu.

"All I'd need now is to get pneumonia," Blaiberg jokingly told newsmen in New York.

The retired dentist, the world's longest surviving heart transplant patient, said his anniversary was "a lovely, sunny day" in Cape Town, South Africa, so "we went to the beach and had a lovely swim."

The telephone call was arranged by Stein and Day, publishers of his book "Looking at My Heart." Sol Stein, president of the firm, said Blaiberg expects to come to New York at the end of March or the beginning of April.

Stein also announced that Blaiberg has established a trust fund for Dorothy and Muriel Haupt, widow and mother of Olve Haupt, donor of his new heart.

Asked what he looked forward to in the United States, Blaiberg said: "Like a schoolboy, I'd like to see the Empire State Building."

"I've never felt better in my life, the cheerful, 59-year-old Blaiberg said. "I feel even better than I did years before the operation."

Blaiberg got his new lease on life last Jan. 2 when Dr. Christian Barnard and his transplant team conducted the operation at Cape Town's Groote Schuur Hospital.

Blaiberg was asked if he had any difficulty in deciding to go through with the operation.

Hughesville, who died on Okinawa, Dec. 16, 1968, will be held at the Ewing Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Saturday, with the Rev. Walter P. Arnold officiating.

Full military honors will be conducted by personnel from Ft. Leonard Wood, arranged by Captain Charles Rothlisberger of Wentworth Military Academy at Lexington.

Burial will be in Highland Sacred Gardens.

The body arrived in Kansas City Wednesday, accompanied by Sgt. Michael Krajewski, and was brought to the Ewing Funeral Home.

Sgt. Gaul was born in Sedalia, Feb. 11, 1947, son of Roy Russell and Opal M. Roberts Gaul. He received his elementary education at Versailles, Phoenix, Ariz., and Kansas City.

He attended the West Seattle High School at Seattle, Wash.

He enlisted in the Army at Seattle, Wash. in 1965, and received his basic training at Ft. Ord, Calif., and was sent to Ford Gordon, Ga., for further training. He was assigned to the 82nd Air Brone Division and sent to Ft. Bragg, N.C., for paratroop training and upon completion was sent to Ft. Lee, Va.

Assigned to 508th Air Brone Infantry, he was sent to Ft. Kobbe, Canal Zone, Panama, for one year. The unit was sent to Vietnam, Dec. 1, 1967.

Wounded Feb. 24, 1968, he was sent on R and R to Australia and from there to Okinawa.

Sgt. Gaul was a member of the Nazarene Church at Seattle, Wash.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Russell Gaul, Hughesville; two brothers, Sgt. Clarence Lee Roy Gaul, Ft. Bragg, N.C.; Dwain Ray Gaul, 8, of the home; his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Emma Gaul, Phoenix, Ariz.; and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Roberts, Stover.
